Crash Inquiry Indicates Flight Instruments Okay

BRADFORD, Pa. AP — A three-day hearing on two Allegheny Airlines plane crashes which killed 31 people ended Thursday with an engineer saying there was nothing apparently wrong with some of the flight instrument mechanisms.

William G. Peppier, director of engineering for Allegheny, said tests showed the air pressure system which controls some of the instruments was intact.

After the crashes, Peppier said the company rigged up a system to run water over a plane's static ports during a test flight. The static ports are little holes on the side of a plane which let air into instruments to regulate them.

Peppier said the amount of water used in the test was about the same that would have fallen on a plane's fuselage during a rainstorm. He said some water was injected into the static ports while the test plane was descending, but he said the water ran out when the plane leveled off.

While in the ports, he said, the water didn't affect operation of the flight instruments.

Francis A. McAdams, chairman of the hearing for the National Transportation Safety Board, said the agency would continue its investigation and a report on the crashes would be issued at an unspecified later date.

Twenty-eight people testified during the hearings on the crashes Jan. 6 and Christmas Eve. They included surviving passengers and crew members, technical representatives from Allegheny, and the U.S. Weather Bureau, among others.

Hand Grenades Explode In Jerusalem, Gaza Strip

JERUSALEM (AP) — Arab saboteurs hurled hand grenades in Jerusalem, the Jordan west bank and the Gaza Strip Thursday, wounding six Israeli soldiers in a wave of anti-occupation violence on the second anniversary of the six-day war.

The bombings followed the killing of two Israeli army sergeants and a corporal in a bazooka and grenade attack near Gaza City Wednesday night.

In Jerusalem, Arab shopkeepers closed their stores in the bazaars of the ancient walled city.

A grenade, believed tossed from the tall honey-colored walls near Herod's Gate, exploded with a "whoop" in the main street below, injuring an Israeli soldier and four Arabs.

Shrapnel from the grenade peppered taxis parked near the gate and sent bystanders flying for cover.

Steel-helmeted troops rushed to the scene within seconds aboard armored troop-carriers and trucks and rounded up a number of Arab suspects.

As troops with their machine guns at the ready stood guard at the spot, a procession of Arab schoolgirls in green-striped uniforms tried to reach a nearby cemetery to place wreaths on the graves of Jordanians killed in the war that began two years ago.

A posse of Israeli police halted them, took away the wreaths and arrested six.

In the refugee packed Gaza Strip, southwest of Jerusalem, a grenade was thrown at a group of Israeli soldiers outside a police station in the El Ma-Jazi refugee camp, wounding three of them.

Another grenade was tossed into the yard of a police station at Nuseirat, midway between Gaza City and the town of Khan Yunis, injuring two Israeli soldiers.

In the earlier incident, south of the Gaza capital Wednesday night, the army said an Israeli patrol car was hit by bazooka fire and grenades. In the ensuing battle, two sergeants and a corporal, all army reservists, were to be discharged Thursday, were killed and two others injured.

NLF Planning Provisional Coalition Regime for S. Viet

PARIS (AP) — Despite the strong opposition of the Saigon government, the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front said Thursday it is opening consultations with other "goodwill" groups on forming a provisional coalition regime for South Vietnam.

This word came from the NLF spokesman, Tran Hoi Nam, after the 20th full-scale session of the Paris peace talks went through 4 hours and 25 minutes of fruitless debate and North Vietnam delivered one of its toughest attacks yet on the Nixon administration.

Without commenting on the repeated rejection of a coalition government by President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam, Nam told newsmen in response to a question: "The contacts are starting."

He was referring to a provision in the NLF 10-point peace plan for consultations with so-called democratic and peace-loving groups to form an inter-

Reds Hail Conference As Step Toward Unity

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union convened its long-planned International Communist Conference Thursday and hailed it as a step toward unity in the divided world Communist movement.

In the czarist splendor of the Kremlin's St. George Hall, Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev welcomed delegates from 75 Communist parties. He declared his party is convinced the meeting "will be an important stage in the mobilization of all revolutionary, liberative and progressive forces of our time for the struggle against imperialism."

Brezhnev made no reference to the fact that China and a number of other ruling and non-ruling Communist parties were boycotting the conference.

The split between the Soviet Union and China and the invasion of Czechoslovakia last summer also prompted some parties attending the conference to demand a thorough airing of Communist differences, a demand which could produce fireworks.

Showing he intends that no such dispute should destroy harmony of the conference, Brezhnev declared: "We are convinced that the spirit of comradeship and internationalism, the will for unity of the Communist movement, which were forcefully manifested in the course of the preparatory work, will also determine the entire atmosphere at the present conference."

Indicating a need to overcome differences within the movement, Brezhnev said the conference "will make a big contribution to the cause of rallying the international Communist movement on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism."

It has taken the Soviet Union five years of patient diplomatic work to stage the conference, the first since the 1960 world Communist meeting also held in Moscow.

S. Viet Forces Take Over More Combat Burden

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Thursday South Vietnamese forces are making rapid strides toward taking over more of the combat burden. But he refused to predict when the first pullout of U.S. troops might be announced.

Rogers leaves Friday for the Midway Island summit conference amid continuing speculation that President Nixon and President Nguyen Van Thieu will announce there Sunday a specific date for withdrawal of perhaps 50,000 of the 540,000 GIs now in Vietnam.

"I wouldn't want to say anything that would be in the nature of a prediction about what will come out of the Midway meeting," Rogers told a news conference.

At the same time the secretary of state—who has just returned from Vietnam—spoke approvingly of Saigon's progress toward taking over more of the fighting. Under the Nixon administration's strategy, at least some of the Americans could be brought home as they are replaced by South Vietnamese, regardless of what happens in peace negotiations.

"I have no doubt in my mind at all that the government of South Vietnam is moving in the direction" of taking over more of the war, Rogers said.

"I think that the training of the ARVN (Army of the Republic of South Vietnam) has been moving along at a rapid pace."

"They recognize that the U.S. commitment is not open-ended, and they are not being pushed in this position. They came to this conclusion on their own and I think are perfectly ready to move in this direction."

On the war's political front, Rogers dealt both with Senate critics who contend that the Nixon administration is committed to propping up the Thieu regime and with Thieu's reported concern that Nixon is not backing him strongly enough in the negotiations over Vietnam's future. The enemy is demanding replacement of the Thieu government with a coalition regime as part of a permanent peace settlement.

"We are not wedded to any government in Saigon," Rogers said.

"The only principle to which the administration is wedded is that the people of South Vietnam should have the right by free choice to decide their future, so that any government which represents the will of the people in South Vietnam is acceptable to the United States."

He said Washington and Saigon would even accept a Com-

Thieu Reported Ready To Accept Special Elections

(c) N.Y. Times News Service SAIGON — President Nguyen Van Thieu is reliably reported to be prepared to accept special elections in South Vietnam as part of a negotiated settlement of the war.

Thieu has privately advised western diplomats and South Vietnamese political figures that he could agree to special elections before the next nationwide balloting—scheduled for 1971—if such elections are a prerequisite to peace.

Special elections are one of the major demands set out by the Viet Cong in the 10-point bargaining position presented at the Paris talks May 8. He has already agreed that the Viet Cong could participate as a party in national elections.

Thieu is also understood to be willing to consider the formation of a joint electoral commission that would include representatives of the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, to supervise the elections.

The Saigon government reportedly regards such a commission as an acceptable alternative to the Viet Cong's demand for an interim coalition government, which Thieu opposes.

However, the government would insist on playing the major role on any such commission, according to South Vietnamese sources, and would demand that Viet Cong representation be kept to a minority.

The sources said that the commission would operate under guidelines agreed to in Paris by both parties, but under the general supervision of the Saigon ministry of interior. Most observers here believe the Viet Cong would reject any such restriction.

As Thieu's advisers view it, the job of the commission would be to write a new set of electoral laws, to set a date for the elections and to supervise the balloting. The belief is that this could be done within the framework of the present South Vietnamese constitution, or with only minor amendments.

Sofar, however, the NLF has firmly refused to accept Thieu's offer for secret talks on a political settlement. The United States has insisted that no such settlement can be made without the participation and agreement of the Saigon government.

In the meeting, the NLF deputy representative, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, asserted that the United States so far had sought to evade any clear stand on a coalition government.

Rogers

munist government for South Vietnam, provided it was chosen by a free election in which all participants renounced the use of force in achieving their political goals.

But the "coalition government" envisioned by Communists "would not be acceptable to anybody on our side," he said, adding the enemy envisioned imposing Communist leaders on South Vietnam, rather than free-choice elections.

And Rogers suggested that the enemy's real intent "is to attack the present government, cause confusion and chaos and thereby impose a governmental structure on South Vietnam that will not represent the will of the people."

On other matters Rogers said:

—"It would be a tragic thing if our relations deteriorated with Latin America." He pledged the administration to efforts to improve U.S. ties with Latin neighbors.

He sees no deep-seated anti-U.S. feeling in the Latin American demonstrations against the visits by New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller as a Nixon fact-finding emissary and appealed to the American public not to form any wrong judgment about Latin American attitudes toward the United States. Demonstrations are understandable, "because we have some here in our own country."

—The timetable for strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviets has been delayed slightly by the Midway trip, but the discussions should still begin early this summer. A National Security Council session in about 10 days will review the question. Then Washington will consult with its NATO allies and with Moscow on starting the talks.

—Meanwhile the United States will not halt tests of multiple re-entry nuclear rockets. The Soviets are testing their big missiles. The U.S. tests will not preclude an agreement with the Soviets against deployment of multiple-headed nuclear missiles, but in the meanwhile U.S. military preparations should not be abandoned.

—Some progress has been made in big power talks on a Middle East settlement. There now seems to be general agreement that the final arrangement has to be a total package, rather than a solution arrived at by stages.

Rogers has been called to a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Friday before his takeoff for Midway. The group is headed by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., a severe critic of the administration's Vietnam policy.

Deaths in Civil Strife Here Small Compared to World

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rate of American deaths in civil disorders in the 1960s has been infinitesimal in comparison with the worldwide average, the National Commission on Violence was told Thursday.

Nevertheless, the commission's task force on the history of violence said, "We have become a rather bloody-minded people in both action and reaction. We are likely to remain so as long as so many of us think violence is an ultimate solution to social problems."

The 300,000-word, two-volume report was issued on the anniversary of the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy. His murder led to the formation last year of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence.

A historian and a political scientist, Hugh Davis Graham of Johns Hopkins and Ted Robert Gurr of Princeton—directed the task force and prepared the summary of its conclusions.

But they cautioned that the report "is not an accurate atlas to well-mapped terrain; rather, it is equivalent to a 16th-century map of the New World, replete with sea serpents and expanses of terra incognita, its purported ranges and rivers based on reports of lone explorers."

In a detailed comparison of civil strife in 114 nations, the task force concluded:

—"Although 220 Americans died in violent civil strife in the five years before mid-1968, the rate of 1.1 per million population was infinitesimal compared with the average of 238 deaths per million for all nations, and less than half the European average of 2.4 per million.

—"In total magnitude of strife, taking into account the unusual frequency and duration of strife in the United States as well as its more moderate levels of participation and casualties, the United States ranks first among the 17 Western democracies, and 24th among the 114 larger nations and colonies of the world.

Now Nader Knocks A Union Election

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Safety crusader Ralph Nader says secret balloting in United Mine Workers union elections is not possible.

And Nader, speaking at commencement exercises Wednesday night at Allegheny County Community College, says incumbent president Tony Boyle will only be re-elected if the ballot boxes are "stuffed" or the election is "rigged" some other way.

Nader has already endorsed Joseph A. Yablonski, a member of the union's international board who is challenging Boyle in the union's upcoming election. Calling UMW election procedures a "gross violation of federal law and by-laws of the UMW constitution," Nader said: "Secret ballots in UMW elections are a joke."

GI Can Get Court Martial For Crime in Uniform

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has advised field commanders that a serviceman may still be tried by court-martial for a civilian crime if he is wearing his uniform when the act occurs.

Military justice experts handed down this interpretation of Monday's Supreme Court ruling that servicemen must be judged by civilian courts for offenses that are not "service-connected."

In the absence of detailed guidance from the high court, Army legal specialists drew up several guidelines to help commanding generals decide who has jurisdiction in any given case.

"The fact that an alleged offender was in uniform or otherwise identified with the military when offense was committed may well be a relevant factor in the circumstances to determine service connection or impact," an Army message to the field said.

In Monday's 5-3 decision, the Supreme Court held that the military did not have jurisdiction in the case of a serviceman accused of attempted rape, house breaking and assault with intent to rape. The alleged offenses occurred off base while the soldier was in civilian clothes and not carrying out military duties.

The Army said that in general the decision means that the fact a man is on active duty in the armed forces does not automatically subject him to court-martial for any crime.

Then it gave these particulars to commanding generals who will have to decide whether cases should be sent to military or civil courts:

— Military jurisdiction can be asserted if the offense is committed on any military installation, or — If the offense is against a military person or government property, or — Where the offense is purely military, not civil, in nature, or — Where the offense occurs outside U.S. territorial jurisdiction, or — Where a factual relation to military effectiveness exists."

OEO Homemakers Program Changed

The highly-successful Home-Makers Home-Health Service funded under OEO for Warren and Forest counties will continue to function in the two-county area but with one big change, according to information released by Commissioner Dr. D. K. Rice at the regular county commissioners' meeting yesterday.

In order to make the program self-sustaining, Dr. Davis said, the program cost will be computed monthly, and this cost will be passed on to the users of the service according to their ability to pay. This procedure will be followed for a six-month period, Dr. Rice said, at which time the entire program will again be evaluated.

Under the new program, he said, Forest County will have to reconsider their position that they can put only $750 in the program for the coming year. Commissioner Rice said that he is suggesting to the Forest County commissioners that since they might find it difficult to budget their full share of the expenses, they might find it more profitable to buy the service from Warren County as it is needed.

The commissioners agreed that there was no intent to limit extension of this service to anyone needing it, but the purpose is to make the bearing of the costs more equitable. Under the old procedure, everyone was getting some of the service free of charge.

Junk Auto Pick-Up Is Picking Up

One year ago this month, it might have appeared to the casual observer, according to Dale Freeborough of the zoning office, and William Rusin of the planning department, that Warren County was destined to see even a more rapid accumulation of junk cars as there seemed to be no answer in sight for the disposal of these eyesores.

However, just one year, almost to the day, after the initial idea was conceived for a junk car removal program, the first junk car was removed from the streets of Warren to a collection site at Akeley. With the passing of this first big hurdle, Rusin and Freeborough said they feel confident that all of Warren County's junk autos will follow in the path of this first one now that the "ball is rolling."

Mrs. Thomas Anthony of 327 Jackson ave. gave the title to her car to be junked to Dale Freeborough at 9:15 a.m., Thursday; it was loaded on a special winch truck, under contract to Gay Mark Industries, and was on its way to the junk yard in less than 40 minutes.

Junk cars will be picked up if the necessary arrangements are made by calling the zoning office at 723-7550, Ext. 50.

Nixon Orders Survey Of Viet Vets Benefits

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP)

President Nixon ordered a study of ways to improve benefits for Vietnam veterans Thursday—on a day he was preparing for a U.S.-Vietnam summit session Sunday where American troop levels will be an important point of discussion.

Nixon also named a new director for the Veterans Administration, businessman Donald E. Johnson of West Branch, Iowa. The nomination requires Senate approval.

Maneuvers With Real Bullets

Members of the 112th Infantry, National Guard, will be holding maneuvers on the Blue Eye State Game Lands No. 143 on June 7 and 8, 14, 15, 21, and 22, according to information received from battalion headquarters in Erie. Live ammunition will be used in the exercises, and guards will be posted at all state game lands roads. The area is located near Pittsfield between Rt. 6 and the Spring Creek road.

Members of the 112th Infantry are from Warren, Erie, Corry, Bradford, Franklin and Meadville.

Woman Driver In 2-Car Crash

Julie T. Moody, 66, of Mason Mobile City, was taken to Warren General Hospital for examination following a two-car accident on Rte. 62, about a half-mile north of Warren, Thursday afternoon. Troopers at Warren State Police Barracks said the Moody auto, going north on Rte. 52, had slowed for traffic when it was hit in the rear by a car driven by James Richard Brecht, 22, of 9 Jackson st., North Warren. Damage to both cars was estimated at $500.

Nixon tried out, too, a new locale which he said will be the summer White House while he is spending August on the California coast. The spot is a villa on the grounds of the Newport Inn, at Newport Beach, about 30 miles from Nixon's San Clemente home overlooking the ocean.

It was a day in which reaction mounted to the presidential speech Wednesday attacking what Nixon called new isolationists and upholding a strong military establishment.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler refused to focus on critics of the speech, saying Nixon was not aiming at any individuals and that there had been far more positive than negative reaction.

Ziegler also told reporters at a briefing at newly established press center at Newport Beach that obviously troop levels would not be excluded from the Sunday discussions at Midway Island between Nixon and President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Some published reports have said the Midway meeting will produce an announcement of an American withdrawal of some 50,000 troops. Ziegler did not specifically deny this, but neither did he support it.

With Johnson by his side, Nixon announced that the new administrator of the Veterans Administration will be chairman of the new President's Committee on the Vietnam Veteran.

He said that far fewer veterans than expected are taking advantage of opportunities to go to college under the GI Bill of Rights.

Johnson, 45, an Army sergeant in World War II, replaces William J. Driver, who resigned as veterans' administrator.

He is a former national commander of the American Legion.

Shafer Sits on Sidelines As Budget Battle Begins

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer said Thursday he was going to sit on the sidelines for a while to let the legislature hash out its differences over the already six-month-old battle over his proposed $2.52 billion budget.

Shafer told a special news conference the liaison committee he appointed in April to help iron out differences over the budget between his office and House and Senate leaders met Wednesday and decided further meetings would be futile at this time.

With only 25 more days until the end of the current fiscal year, said Shafer, "It became readily apparent that the differences between legislators was so great that the budget issue could not be resolved until the caucuses themselves resolved their differences."

The governor said once the legislators knew what direction they wanted to take on new taxes and programs, he would be willing to meet daily with the legislature to get a budget in order.

The governor said he told liaison committee members: "These differences should be resolved and a budget agreed to before June 30 because stopgap appropriations are not a good way to run state government." Stopgaps, such as were used to keep the state operating during the marathon budget battle in 1967, "cause deplorable uncertainty and chaos and are unfair to the people of Pennsylvania," he said.

Shafer has proposed a record budget 25 per cent larger than the current General Fund budget. He has asked for a state personal income tax and $150 million in new business taxes to finance the plan.

Senate Republicans have proposed an alternative "bare bones" budget of slightly over $2 billion which cuts out all of Shafer's proposed new programs and cuts several existing ones. House Republicans also have proposed their own, $2.3 billion financial plan which has come under fire from other legislators for a controversial proposal to finance some $134 million in special projects.

Both House and Senate Democratic caucuses have remained uncommitted on the budget issue but have sniped at the size of the Shafer plan and have indicated opposition to the income tax unless new business taxes come first.

Shafer said his decision to pull out of the budget battle was not an attempt to wash his hands of the affair.

"I have fulfilled my constitutional duty (to present a budget) long ago and I feel I have gone far beyond my constitutional duty," he said.

He said he hoped the legislators will work on a day to day basis to resolve the impasse by June 30.

"They had a fiscal crisis in Philadelphia and it didn't take them long to work that out," he said.

He added he still had hopes his proposal for a state income tax would be accepted "as the fairest method of taxation."

Parachutists Make Way To Mexican Crash Site

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Four parachutists who dropped onto a cloud-shrouded mountainside where a Mexican jetliner crashed with 79 persons aboard reported Thursday bodies were scattered over an area more than a mile wide.

At least three U.S. citizens were aboard the 727 jet, the U.S. consul-general reported. Edward A. Jamison, who heads the U.S. consulate in Monterrey, identified them as James M. Hanson, an employee of the Caterpillar Tractor Co. of Peoria, Ill.; Charles Bernard, an employee of the B. F. Goodrich Co., and Ross Plumb.

Hanson, 28, lived in Mexico City with his wife and two children.

It was not immediately known where the other two lived.

A Mexican highway patrolman who climbed the 5,500-foot Friar's Mountain eight miles from Monterrey reported: "There are no signs of survivors and the bodies are burned beyond recognition."

Lt. Carlos Ambia Reyes said it took him 5½ hours to reach the crash site. He reported one jet engine was on one side of the mountain and the fuselage on the other. Part of the wreckage and some bodies had rolled into a deep, narrow canyon, he added.

The four parachutists were dropped in Thursday from helicopters. They were later joined by a group from the Alpine Rescue Squad in Mexico City, who were reported clearing a landing area for helicopters.

But because of the cloud conditions, officials said a landing might not be attempted.

The plane was carrying 72 passengers and seven crew on a non-stop flight from Mexico City to Monterrey.

Among the passengers was Mexican tennis star Rafael Osuna.

Capt. Fernando Garcia, an inspector for the Mexican airline, said there was no indication the pilot had any trouble before the crash.

State Scraps Budget Liaison Committee

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer said Thursday the budget liaison committee between his office and legislative leaders was being scrapped due to differences over his proposed $2.52 billion budget, which could only be resolved in the respective party caucuses.

"We held a liaison meeting yesterday," the governor told a special news conference, "and it became readily apparent that differences between legislators and differences between caucus members were so great that the budget question could not be resolved until the caucuses themselves resolve their differences."

Shafer said he stood ready to meet daily with legislators once they decided the course they wish to pursue. He said he still hopes the budget matter can be resolved by June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

'A Thousand Clowns' Cast Arrives at Plowright

"Like one of those tiny red cars in the circus, its doors opened and out came one thousand clowns, whooping and hollering."

The cast of a Thousand Clowns did not arrive in Scandia in one tiny red car. But when Plowright Playhouse opens June 10, they plan to provide more fun than a three-ring circus.

"A Thousand Clowns" is the story of an off-beat, out-of-work TV writer, Murray Burns. Most of the action takes place in Murray's one-room, Edgar Allan Poe-like apartment.

The intimate Plowright Playhouse, with its audience on three sides, is especially suited for this kind of production.

The director of Plowright's season opener is Christopher Donovan. He is one-eighth Cherokee Indian, wears cowboy boots, drives an English taxi cab and plays drums for his own rock group.

He is inherently qualified to direct this zany comedy. For the past two years, he has directed three shows a week for WHC-TV in Storrs, Conn. After the play opens, he will return to his directorial duties with WTIC-TV, Hartford.

Jerry Doff is a graduate student at the University of Connecticut. He lives in an historic haunted house in Old Coventry, Conn. Jerry will tell you, with a straight face, that he is the "Keeper of the Goat," and studying to be an art thief. He plays the wacked-out role of Murray Burns with a natural instinct.

Peter Mitchell portrays the straight-laced Albert Anundson with a formality that belies his off-stage mode of transportation: a topless triumph.

Sandra, the social worker is a marathon crier and happy laughter combination with a craving for crackerjack. The role has been double-cast for Plowright's production.

Margorie Melnick and Eileen Gottermeyer provide this unbeatable combination. They can outcry, outlaugh, and eat more crackerjack than anyone.

Nick Burns is not a 40-year-old midget. He is the 12-year-old "middle-aged kid" who lives with his Uncle Murray. Bruce Porter, a young boy from Warren, is playing the role. He is following the footsteps of his father, Bill.

William Porter has performed at Plowright before and will be seen in two productions this season.

Ron Smith plays the part of sensibly settled Uncle Arnie. Ron has jumped out of airplanes, and gone down the Colorado in a kayak, but he considers his 17-hour attempt to drive from Newport, N.J., to Scandia as his greatest adventure to date.

Kenn Long has been at Plowright Playhouse for the past month, painting, repairing, and generally making the place ready. On June 10, He will play Lee Herman, "better known as Chuckles the Chipmunk, friend of the Yung-uns and seller of Chuckles Chips Potato Chips."

A Thousand Clowns will run from June 10 to 21, with the exception of June 15 and 16. Reservations may be made by calling 757-8252. This is Plowright's third season under the direction of Mrs. Edith O'Hara of Warren.

Rockefeller's Mission

WASHINGTON -- The failure of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's mission to Latin America is more serious than the headlines indicate, and the headlines have been pretty bad.

The situation is comparable to the closing days of the Eisenhower administration when anti-American riots in Japan became so dangerous that President Eisenhower, then in Manila, had to cancel the remainder of his trip through the Far East.

Today Nelson Rockefeller, who for years has been a great hero in Latin America, has had to cancel his trip to Venezuela, a country where he has built supermarkets, and where he owns a hotel, a plantation and a home.

Rockefeller began winning friends in Latin America when he was first appointed coordinator for Latin American cultural and economic affairs by Franklin D. Roosevelt during the war. Later he became Assistant Secretary of State for Latin American affairs under both Roosevelt and Truman and participated in writing the Treaty of Chapultepec, which bars communism from the Western Hemisphere. Yet he has now been discredited from visiting the country he is considered an adopted citizen.

Venezuela, the country which barred him, is considered one of the more pro-American countries of South America. It has just gone through a very orderly election, during which, by a very close vote, the Christian Democratic party -- Catholic and considered conservative -- replaced the more liberal Democratic Action party. The new president is Rafael Caldera, who has visited the United States a score of times and is considered pro-American.

Venezuela is the biggest exporter of oil to the United States; also the biggest exporter of iron ore to U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel. A group of American contractors, including Kaiser and Murchison, have just finished building Venezuela's hydro-electric Guri dam, bigger than any dam in the Soviet Union. The top Venezuelan engineer in charge of this project was educated at MIT; and most of the new leaders of Venezuela have either studied or lived in the United States.

Inside reasons why the Rockefeller mission has been a failure are:

1. President Nixon's speech on student riots in which he made slurring remarks regarding Latin American education, calling it "one of the most inferior systems of education anywhere in the world." This was bitterly resented by every Latin American university.

2. President Nixon's speech on Pan American Day, April 14, struck a sour note. He kissed off the Alliance for Progress and gave

Science Shortage Hikes Costs

A hidden but potent force pushing up our cost of living in years to come will be the growing difference between the number of scientists our economy needs and the number available -- the "scientific talent gap."

Because our scientific and technological manpower is not keeping pace with our economy's demands, costs of products ranging from automobiles to TV and covering a myriad of modern necessities and luxuries will climb beyond the real value of the products.

"It's a chain reaction which will be felt directly by you, the U.S. consumer," says Dr. Emanuel Piore, president of the board of trustees of the New York Hall of Science and chief scientist for IBM. Unless we can reverse the trend, this is what he foresees.

+ The relatively small group of qualified technologists in our country will demand and will get higher salaries -- which will "dramatically increase the entire cost of research projects."

+ The shortage of trained scientific manpower also will adversely affect production schedules in all industries. The rapid rate of rise of new products must not mislead us, warns Dr. Piore. "This pace must not just merely be maintained. It must be accelerated."

+ As a result of slower production schedules, it will take longer for improved products to reach our hands. And as a result of curtailed research, fewer new products are likely.

+ There's a real risk of increases in the costs of such vital services as electric power and if these service costs climb, the entire economy will reflect it.

+ Finally, Dr. Piore underlines the danger inherent in the shortage to our ability to compete successfully in the world markets with other technologically advanced nations. As an illustration, Japanese goods long ago erased their reputation for being shoddy and cheap. In fact, they are now at the top -- particularly in the camera and electronics fields -- because of Japan's technical talents.

Although the National Security Council claims we have no appreciable shortage of scientific and technological manpower, Dr. Piore emphatically disagrees. As of today, we have 358,900 scientists and engineers working in industry and 193,600 working in government. This is roughly half of the manpower the National Science Foundation estimated at the start of the decade we would need by now.

What's more, the New York Hall of Science offers a discouraging breakdown of 42,600 engineering graduates this past year, only 38,009 actually took their degree and this total was further depleted by the fact that 20 per cent were foreign engineering students who returned to their homes abroad after graduation.

What can we do about it? Dr. Piore is counting heavily on the creation of museums of science and technology which will inspire our youngsters to go in for science careers. Indicating the dimensions are two major new museums -- the $30 million Centennial Centre of Science & Technology in Toronto and the $25 million Hall of Science in New York. So intent is the Toronto museum on luring youngsters that it has built dormitory facilities into the plans for the building so the students can live and work at the museum.

Museums of science span the world, exist in Moscow, Prague, Budapest, London, Paris, Munich, Cairo -- and always have been excellent career recruitment centers. Here, they are booming as never before in Seattle, Portland, Rochester, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Boston, Philadelphia -- not to mention the famous Chicago Museum of Science & Industry and the Smithsonian Institution.

"We must convey the excitement of science," says Dr. Piore, "and convince our youngsters that in our accelerating technological economy they will find their vast humanitarian potentialities."

The Last Chance

LOS ANGELES -- The last chance to avoid a partition of Germany that would award Soviet Russia a large share, including the territory surrounding Berlin, came 25 years ago when General Eisenhower's famous Normandy landing took place, breaching Hitler's Fortress Europe.

Eisenhower himself blamed Prime Minister Churchill's pessimism on Overlord (the plan for the invasion of France) for the ultimate cession to Soviet control of what we now know as East Germany and the isolation of West Berlin. According to Eisenhower (as recounted to this writer) the genesis of Germany's present division was as follows:

When they were planning Overlord in England during the spring of 1944, Churchill said that if Eisenhower moved 36 divisions across the channel into France to control the Brest and Cherbourg peninsulas, it would be the greatest military operation in all history; that if he also gained control of Le Havre, it would be an operation without historical comparison and that he (Churchill) would be the first to announce this.

Eisenhower said he expected to be on the frontiers of Germany by Christmas. Churchill kept shaking his head and said this was entirely out of the question. As a result of Churchill's skeptical attitude, unsound political decisions were taken.

In a final briefing Eisenhower had before the start of Overlord, Churchill was extremely pessimistic. All the high allied officers plus the King of England and Churchill were present. After Eisenhower had finished his briefing, Churchill said before the group that his attitude toward Overlord was "hardening." Eisenhower commented: "That was a hell of a way to inspire faith in my officers."

Eisenhower had absolute confidence in the ultimate success of his plans, but could never convince Churchill. Churchill came to him once and started explaining what a terrible tragedy it would be if the operation failed. Tears began to roll down his cheeks and he said that in such a case he would have to present his resignation. Churchill kept bringing up logical arguments as to why the operation would fail, but he always based them upon an unsound initial premise.

Unfortunately, Eisenhower said, Churchill forgot his promise to get up and announce what a great victory and unprecedented success Overlord had been, after France was overrun. In March of 1945, the allies were all ready to close in on Germany. They were still about 300 miles from Berlin. The Russians had no more rivers to cross and had a powerful bridgehead across the Oder.

As a matter of fact the allies could have gone much farther east than they actually did. When they met the Russians the latter proved to be a battered, rag-tag outfit, and Eisenhower said, "We could have licked the hell out of them." But he had to stop at the Elbe, which was already far to the east of the political line dividing Germany fixed by the political leaders.

This line was chosen largely because of Churchill's pessimism. Churchill refused to believe the Western armies could even get that far into Germany. If Churchill had had confidence in Eisenhower's armies, the line dividing Germany could have been moved much nearer to the Elbe or on the Elbe itself.

Eisenhower could not have taken Berlin because the Russians were in a position to surround the city before he could get there. He had to draw a battle line where the Eastern and Western armies had met in order to avoid confusion because there was a tremendous paucity of interpreters, on both sides, and friction had to be avoided at all costs.

Eisenhower's account differs substantially from the historical collections of other World War II figures, many of whom sought to fix responsibility for the unsatisfactory German partition line on the Supreme Allied Commander. Indeed, Field Marshal Montgomery blamed Eisenhower for not authorizing him to punch right through to Berlin from the Rhine.

Nevertheless, Eisenhower claimed to have based his own calculations on political decisions which themselves stemmed from Churchill's gloomy belief that the Normandy landings, whose 25th anniversary is now being celebrated, could not succeed as well as, in fact, they did. It was Churchill's lack of confidence in "the greatest military operation in all history" that brought with it Europe's greatest political problem today.

"When are we gonna' get around to a South Vietnam withdrawal...?"

A Remote Control War

WASHINGTON -- Presidents Nixon and Thieu will have a lot to discuss at Midway besides American troop withdrawals from Vietnam. The State Department insists that Thieu's bristling statements in South Korea and Taiwan represent no real retreat from his acceptance of Nixon's eight-point negotiating proposals, and the South Vietnamese president may indeed have been speaking primarily for public consumption; undoubtedly he is feeling pressure from those considerable forces in South Vietnam opposed to any negotiations with the Communists.

Nevertheless, Nixon will have little choice but to make sure he and Thieu are still working to the same general purpose; and that means a review of the stated negotiating position and all its elements, including the key question of elections to determine South Vietnam's political future. Under these circumstances, American withdrawal can only be one topic for discussion -- but an important one.

Thieu may bring with him to Midway reflections of an attitude expressed at a high level in Saigon shortly after Nixon laid down his eight points May 14. Some leading figures in the Thieu government thought then that Hanoi might accept the proposal for "mutual withdrawal" of American and North Vietnamese troops -- although the presence of the latter has never been conceded by Hanoi or the National Liberation Front.

Shafer is Not Lazy

GUBERNATORIAL PACE-SETTER -- Governor Shafer has his critics (what chief executive doesn't?) but on one point at least the critics flat on their face -- when they criticize His Excellency for being lazy, inactive and lackadaisical on the job.

Whatever his faults may be, few chief executives have maintained the almost incessant night and day pace exhibited by Mr. Shafer, initiated during his campaign days and adhered to ever since.

Illustrating this was an incident this week following his return from a South American junket as head of a trade mission designed to beef up Pennsylvania industrial exports to those nations south of the border.

On Monday at 9 p.m., he departed the aerodrome at Buenos Aires and arrived Tuesday at 7:30 a.m. at the airstrip at LaGuardia where he was met by a state-owned winged wonder and flown to Harrisburg, arriving here around 9 a.m.

After checking in at the Governor's Mansion with Mrs. Shafer and his daughter Janie (who before his departure had been injured in an auto accident) he headed for the royal couch where he picked up a few badly needed winks. By noon he was in his office on Capitol Hill, by 1:30 he was speaking to a joint session of the Legislature and immediately thereafter retired to the gubernatorial sanctum where he ran through a heavy schedule of appointments. Thereafter he hustled across the Susquehanna to the Penn Harris Motor Inn to attend (and be butted, along with other state officials) the 39th Annual Gridiron Dinner staged by the Pennsylvania Legislative Correspondents' Association (oldest such association in the country, by the way). It was a full 24-hour stint for one Raymond Philip Shafer -- but he made it.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES -- Reflecting the mood of a goodly portion of the populace of the Keystone State -- at least on the taxpaying front -- is a sign appearing with increasing frequency on the front of automobiles in the western part of the state.

The sign is of about the same specifications as Pennsylvania's auto tags, complete with the outline of the state -- but with these blue letters printed on the gold background: "Pennsylvania -- The Tax State."

There is another sign, this one seen more or less sporadically in the eastern part of the state, which it is doubtful reflects anything but the mood of a goodly portion of the populace, which reads (in bright orange):

"Bartlett For The Next Governor."

The Bartlett referred to is one Pennsylvania Secretary of Highways Robert G. Bartlett, who for two years has been fighting to have license fees slowly enough, it probably would not weaken Saigon's military position unacceptably. To the extent that the plan eased anti-war pressures on Nixon, Saigon again would be the primary beneficiary.

It is at least possible, moreover, that a beginning on "troop replacement" would spur Hanoi into greater interest in "mutual withdrawal" or some other move toward peace. Some high officials in both Washington and Saigon argue that Hanoi is counting on anti-war sentiment in the United States to provide it a negotiated victory, and therefore does not want American troops withdrawn except as part of an over-all settlement.

That may be correct; but the trouble with it is that it suggests the darker possibility inherent in "troop replacement." If the beginning of the program did "not" push Hanoi toward a settlement, the plain implication is that once enough Americans had been withdrawn to pare down the casualty lists and take some pressure off Nixon, a quarter-million or so Americans would remain to support South Vietnam in indefinite continuance of the war.

And the trouble with "that" is the many Americans who believe the real issue is not just casualties, grim as they are, but the war itself and the American role in it and its effect on American as well as Vietnamese life. A war dragging on for years, by the remote control and practical assistance of the United States, would be little more acceptable to them than the present situation; and it might heighten to an incalculable degree the bitterness and rebellion among the millions of young people who are already losing faith in their country.

doubled for Pennsylvania's motoring taxpayers -- unsuccessfully so far, it might be added, thanks to a Legislature that has ignored "The Next Governor."

SLIPS IN THE NIGHT --Fortnight ago the publicity unit of the State Department of Public Instruction issued a somewhat conventional PR praise bit in which was detailed the monetary payments the great educational father was benignly making to local school districts to help cover costs of local handicapped children programs.

With (conventional) bureaucratic PR "accuracy" the mimeographed pronouncement went on to point out that the payments were for the school year 1968-69. . . Well, the fact is, the payments obviously cannot be made until after the school year has been completed and the 1968-69 school year is only now ending.

Actually the handicapped children payments were for the "past" 1967-68 school year.

Laughter, But No Teller

The President of the United States -- take my word for it -- is not a comedian. He's a pretty good laughter if someone else is telling the joke, but he's no teller. Neither was Lyndon Johnson nor Dwight D. Eisenhower. Jack Kennedy could tell an Irish story pretty well. But Hoover, Coolidge, Wilson and Taft couldn't draw a smile if they slipped on the ice walking down the front steps of the White House.

That is why I wondered over Nixon's tender bon mot about a woman becoming President within the next fifty years. Notice that he is keeping the ladies at bay until long after he has finished HIS eight years. I couldn't understand the joke about Mom -- any Mom -- becoming our Chief Executive on or about the year 2019.

The country has gone to hell -- everybody knows it -- but not that far. So I concluded that Mr. Nixon was serious. He must have been. Nobody laughed. He smiled wanly, as he uttered the tragic words, but millions of husbands who heard it on the telly limped off to the nearest tavern to meditate.

A host of women I know wandered through my mind, and none of them was what might be called a first class candidate for the job of Madam President of the United States. Take my sister Adele. Aw, go ahead. She wouldn't hurt a mosquito. She isn't exactly nervous or frightened, but I can tell you that if she was running the country her office would be under Lincoln's bed. If an enemy sunk our fleet, Adele would say a rosary and that would square that problem.

How about Clang-Clang Callahan, who used to get loaded, walk up to a street corner, divest herself of all her clothing, and turn in a false fire alarm? Clang-Clang has possibilities. Just maintain a good wine cellar in the White House and put fire boxes in every room. She'd show you a little action -- more than you will get from Nixon, I can tell you.

Then there is Phyllis Diller. The lady with the four-foot cigarette holder grins like FDR. She may not be sufficiently intellectual for the job and is also addicted to putting roasts in the oven in the morning -- not to eat, silly -- just to make the house smell nice.

My mother-in-law Maggy was a truly great soul -- she'd give you the bra off her chest -- but in the middle of World War II she sat frowning and I asked her if I could help. She was reading the Journal-American. "The Japs ain't on our side, are they?" she asked.

I have a beautiful granddaughter named Amy who might make it. She's hardly three and when she and her six older brothers and sisters get dressed to go out to dinner with their parents, Amy makes sure that she is the last one to be ready. The family is waiting at the foot of the stairs and she comes halfway down in her stiff-as-starch dress, pauses, and murmurs: "The queen."

She could be a candidate. My dear friend Sophie Kroll of Asbury Park wouldn't want it. If she was President, and a military aide reported that enemy missiles were coming our way, Sophie would stick her dainty fingers in her ears and say: "Don't think about it and it will go away."

Twiggy, to coin a phrase, is pointless. She is so skinny that they say she is going to have her chest tattooed with one word: "Front." Besides, Twiggy is British and she earns more money than the President. My wife Kelly, as President, wouldn't care if everybody declared war on the United States. She'd be too busy standing, with one finger on her hips, redecorating the whole White House. She'd rather switch than switch.

My mother is gone -- may God hug her to Him -- but she got pleasure out of having a good cry. There was an old film about a poorhouse called Over The Hill and she saw it four times. Each showing was a three hanky job. In the long ago I had a nervous cousin who was so tense that she used to nod yes before I got two words into a sentence.

One day when she and her husband were vacationing at Mount Airy, N.J., she was working in the kitchen when her husband fired a small .22 rifle out in the woods. He returned and said: "Did you hear it?" "Did I hear it?" she shouted. "I almost hopped into the sink with the dishes."

Jacqueline Susanne, who writes sexy-sexy books, might be a candidate. At a summit meeting, she would ask the Russian premier: "What are you doing after the orgy?" I have a vague and uneasy feeling that Mr. Nixon either didn't major in women, or else he DID. . .

REFLECTIONS

By Betty Rice

Several have commented on their pleasure in viewing some of Warren's charming homes and we feel certain that readers outside of the borough and county can't help but be impressed by beauty of the community -- particularly at this time of year. Times-Mirror and Photographer Mel Mansfield took the pictures at random and for several reasons we are identifying them as to location only and in most instances have no knowledge of the owners. The two pictured above are in the Hill street area which is literally a showplace.

Gleaned from an area newspaper--An area golfer well known for his dulcet voice paid for his temper last weekend. Miffed at a muffed shot, he hurled his club which traveled upward and became lodged in a tree. He had no recourse but to climb the tree and retrieve the stick.

New problem: Young men with long hair are not permitted to swim in some area pools without bathing caps.

The 31st Anniversary event at Betty Lee brings back nostalgic memories. Shortly after we made our home in Warren, we had the pleasure of doing the store's very first radio program (and later their display advertising). We remember it well -- same time -- same station-- "More style, more selection, more value--You get all three at Betty Lee. At that time Hy Levinson was top man at Betty Lee and we had occasion to chat with him briefly last Sunday when he was visiting brother Jake -- our next door neighbor. Hy brought his oldest son Leo here where the young man will work this summer before going to Israel in September for a year of work and study.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't want to make any trouble but I'd like to know if I have a justifiable complaint. I went to the doctor last week for a flu shot. The nurse whom I am accustomed to seeing in the office was home ill. The doctor introduced me to his 14-year-old son. He appeared to be a very pleasant lad. "Tom is going to be a doctor," his father said with understandable pride. "He's learning to give shots." Then the doctor handed the needle to the boy. I was so stunned I just sat there. The boy did indeed give me the shot. Isn't there a law to protect patients from this sort of thing? My annual physical examination comes up next month but I'm afraid to go back. Please tell me if the doctor is conducting his practice within ethical limits. -- Appleton

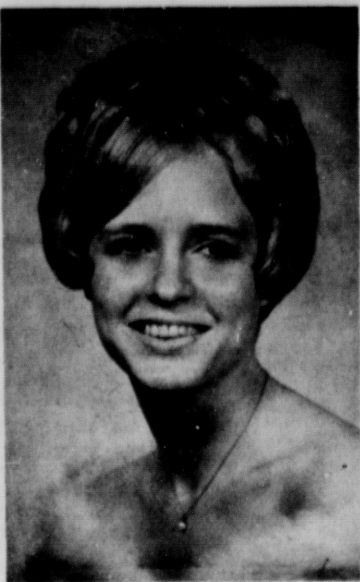

DEAR APPLE: Only trained persons should be permitted to give shots. If something had gone wrong, the doctor would have been liable for a beautiful malpractice suit. What he did was highly unethical and most injudicious. ++ +

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a guy -- 22, good build and what you might call an all-around athlete. Ever since I was a kid I've heard people say I'd be great looking if it weren't for my snout. I've been called Eaglebeak, Durante, Da Nose and a few other names. My big nose never bothered me and it still doesn't, but now I've got a girl who keeps bugging me about getting plastic surgery. She says I'd look like Kirk Douglas if I had a straight, normal size nose. Honest, Ann, it isn't my life's ambition, but secretly I guess I'd like it. My one big hangup is the ribbing I'd get. The guys would lay it on me till doomsday. What do you think? -- Borneo

DEAR BORN: If the only thing holding you back is the "guys" -- go, boy, go. Of course you'd get a royal razzing but it would last for only a week or two, then they'd tire of the subject and talk about something else. I sense you'd really enjoy a normal size nose, so my advice is go ahead and get one. ++ +

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Open House For 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Mock of North Warren were honored Sunday, June 1, 1969 at an Open House, the occasion marking their 40th wedding anniversary which fell on Monday, June 2.

The affair was hosted by the couple's daughters, Mrs. Alan L. (Donna) Schuler, San Diego, Calif. and Mrs. Richard E. (Bonnie) Corcoran, North Warren and was held at 617 South State street, North Warren.

Mrs. Mock received guests in a gown of light blue lace seeded with pearls accented with a corsage of red escort roses. Mr. Mock was favored with an escort rose boutonniere.

A three-tier cake topped with a nosegay of miniature ruby roses and baby white carnations was flanked by ruby candles in silver candelabra. The Mocks were favored with many gifts including ruby crystal, silver and money.

Durwood Mock and Vera Himebaugh were married June 2, 1929 in North East, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Mock have three grandchildren, the Misses Sherri and Bonnie Schuler of San Diego, neither of whom could attend but phoned to offer best wishes and Patricia Corcoran of North Warren.

There were 75 guests present from Warren, Ohio; Sharon, Franklin, Butler, Clarendon, Barnes, Mars and Warren, Pa.; Frewsburg, N. Y. and San Diego, Calif.

Engagement

Mrs. Elva R. Wilson of 105 Main street, North Warren, wishes to announce the engagement of her daughter, Kathy Lee, to Airman Daniel Curtis Rapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rapp of Follett Run Road, Warren, Pa.

Kathy is a 1969 graduate of Warren Area High School and will be attending Bryant & Stratton Business School in Buffalo, N.Y. for Dental Assistance training in July.

He fiancé is a 1967 WAHS graduate and is now serving in the U.S. Air Force. He is presently stationed on the island of Malta in the Mediterranean Sea. No date has been set for the wedding.

Some good cooks follow package directions when they are cooking buckwheat groats with this exception: they add a pinch of monosodium glutamate.

Practical Nurses Hear Trooper

State Trooper Harry W. Jabo of the Warren substation presented a program on narcotics addiction illustrated with moving pictures at Monday's meeting of Warren County Division of Licensed Practical Nurses.

The films showed causes of drug addiction among high school and college students, dangers of parental indifference, perils of addiction and the hope for rehabilitation.

Mrs. Mary Lee Dyke, president, conducted the meeting and Mrs. Mary Crozier, RN, of Experience, Inc., asked for volunteers to help at Warren Age Center.

Mrs. Irene Dunham and Mrs. Evelyn Greenawalt, co-chairmen, reported on arrangements formulated at a meeting held earlier at the home of Mrs. Lavena Cox for a float to be entered in the Jaycee's Fourth of July parade. It was decided to plan a picnic for some time during August. Members will be notified of the date and place.

GREAT OUTDOOR LOOKS

By Mary Sue Miller

(Last article in a series of five: "How To Trim For The Swim.")

If you've begun the "homework" already outlined in this series, you will soon be in bathing-suit trim. But be not too hasty to jump in the swim.

For great outdoor looks you first need some sun, fun and fashion accessories. Those little nothing suits beg to be dressed up. For sure you can't dress them down!

Let's begin at the head with a sunbrella size hat, whimsical gypsy scarf or wild beach wig, both to protect your hair and project your cool. Next come fun shades, scalloped like daisies maybe, and fun jewelry, most likely a yard of chains.

Whether you aim at cover or adornment, you can cut a caper with gay jumpsuits, wide-legged pajamas, a long float of a robe, mini coats and shirt coats in materials that range from sheer to sturdy.

Carryalls for the beach, the biggest ever, are favored in vinyl, canvas and straw. And hold all the gear you might wish to tote. The not-to-be-forgotten musts are a swim cap, sunscreen product, lip gloss, eye oil stick, hair groomers and makeup necessities. For want of those beauty aids many a pretty in a pretty suit fails to make the grade. Like Humpty-Dumpty she falls apart and can't get back together again.

A fresh, healthy look is The Look. It is the opposite of appearing as though you just fell out of bed or had spent hours on fixing up. It's that nifty all YOU look, all summer long. Have a happy!

Honored On 25th Anniversary

RUSSELL--The Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Hummel were honored Sunday evening, June 1, 1969 by members and friends of Akeley and Russell Methodist churches.

The occasion celebrated the couple's 25th wedding anniversary and was held in the Russell church. Ralph Swanson announced the program which included an organ solo by Mrs. Kenneth Jespersen; a vocal duet by Mrs. John Putnam and Mrs. Stewart Van Ord, accompanied by Mrs. William Hunt; an organ solo by Bruce Lindquist; a vocal solo by John Briggs, accompanied by Mr. Lindquist; an appropriate reading by Mrs. James Nesmith; vocal solo by Mrs. James Prettyman; saxophone selections by Delbert Werhle, accompanied by Mrs. Jespersen and vocal solo by Mrs. Ora Miller.

Refreshments were served by members of both churches, including a three-tier wedding cake. Gifts were presented the honored couple, a silver coffee service from members of both churches, a purse of money and several others. Their children presented them a silver lustreware glass pitcher and water glass set.

Decorations featured wedding bells and streamers in pink and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Hummel were married in Brackenridge 25 years ago when he was attending seminary and she was teaching school. Immediately after their marriage both enrolled for classes at the seminary. They are completing their seventh year in Russell and Akeley churches.

The Hummel's have three children: Dorothy, a senior at West Virginia Wesleyan College in Buckhannon; David, a senior at Eisenhower High School and William, an EHS junior.

South employed guile to win a contract that might have been defeated as the cards actually lay. Altho his plan does not necessarily win our vote of approval, it points up the importance of psychology as one of the essential methods of an experienced declarer's technique.

West opened the six of hearts against three no trump and the trick was taken in the closed hand by the nine. Declarer could count six diamond tricks, the heart just won and the ace of clubs. If the club finesse succeeded, his total would be increased to the required nine.

There was a risk involved in taking the club finesse, however, for it lost and West was able to reach his partner with the ace of spades—a heart lead thru South's king-jack would enable West to cash enough tricks to defeat the contract. Of course, if West had the ace of spades, there was nothing to fear, for South's heart holding would then be safe from attack.

Declarer saw a way to give himself an extra chance however, if the cards were all wrong for him. He decided to use a bit of psychology. At trick two, he cashed the ace followed by the king of diamonds from his hand. His next play was the queen of spades. This was designed to give the appearance that he had the lone ace, king of diamonds and was trying to drive out the ace of spades in order to create an entry to dummy's long suit.

Perhaps South's methods should have been questioned, but it was admittedly difficult for East to be aware of what was going on. He could hardly know, for example, that West's opening lead had dislodged declarer's only heart stopper and that that suit was now ready to run. At any rate, East ducked the queen of spades after some "soul wracking," and South quickly ran for cover with his nine tricks.

Of course, if East had both the ace of spades and the king of clubs, then declarer would have exposed himself to an unnecessary risk, since the club finesse would have succeeded. In that case, however, we would have had no story to tell.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1969

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—A lack of proper procedure will make for lack of controlling interest. Also bear in mind that the window-dressing is not a measure of the basic value. Remember old obligations, promises.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—This is no time to permit fine opportunities to slip through your hands. Financial and artistic gains indicated. Be your engaging, tactful, smiling self.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Your mercury promises a new chance for advancement. Keep going in known areas and keep extra-curricular activities in their proper place, never superseding everyday duties, essentials.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Avoid worry, indecision. You can make progress if you strike forth staunchly, knowingly. If you hesitate when the occasion warrants action, little reward will be yours.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—It may be advisable to slacken your gait in order to detect error of method or details overlooked. Avoid foolhardy ventures. Plan with confidence.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—End of the week jam-up? Back off, take a better look, get a better perspective. A slight change here or there could reactivate the forward movement.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Mixed influences. Don't head into complications; steer a clear course. Speak softly but with decision. You are qualified to give more than an ordinary assist.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—Poise and perseverance are two requirements now. Choose the most appropriate goal and plan for its achievement carefully. SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Focus ambitions on an attainable plateau. Don't strive for the unreasonable. Arbitration scheduled? Engage in it quietly, purposefully. If not well counselled, new ventures could prove a problem.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Review the inner forces that drive you. Are you sure you are following the right course for YOU? Day's aspects ask for the better-than-just-good effort and thought.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Business matters, difficult tasks, long-range planning favored now. But have patience, be vigilant and precise. Watch budget, protect assets.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Mixed influences. Don't be caught in a tide of vacillation; be resolute, firm. Avoid tension, squabbles, fretting. Move on to well-earned gains. Maintain contact with helpful persons.

YOU BORN TODAY have the mind, and usually the inclination, for intellectual pursuits; could be an outstanding salesman, writer, promotion expert; delve into the extraordinary and come up with out-sized gains. A restless individual, eventual success depends upon the steadiness and stamina for routine you can summon up. You are expert at meeting, captivating people, handling novel situations. You can pick brilliant ideas "out of a hat." Good! If you are developing self-mastery and controlling a desire for excitement. You can put a new idea "into a nutshell," make it saleable. Do not succumb to inner conflict and change goals often. Birthdate of: John A. Roebing, engineer, (designer of Brooklyn Bridge); Pierre Cornille, French dramatist.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

(c) 1969; by The Chicago Tribune

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

+ TOO MANY BOOSTERS

New evidence shows that four injections of tetanus toxoid, as recommended, are good enough to last a lifetime. Three injections during the first 12 months and a booster about a year later provide basic immunization. The first may be given as early as 2 months. There is a 4-week span between the first, second, and third injection. One year after the third injection, the fourth is given.

A group of Boston physicians came to these conclusions on reappraising the need for booster doses after receiving adequate immunization in childhood. In their opinion, boosters are not needed for admission to camps, schools, colleges, or as a preventive measure when injured, provided of course, there is no doubt that the individual was properly immunized.

Many physicians will continue to give toxoid booster doses every 10 years if there is any question that all injections were received. It is estimated that there are 60,000,000 unvaccinated persons in the United States. According to public health service investigators there were 535 cases of tetanus in 1965 and 1966; 363 died. In 97 per cent, a history of immunization was not obtained.

Of these individuals, one-third developed lockjaw from a puncture wound and one-quarter following laceration. Nine cases occurred after operations and in 20 victims, the organisms entered thru chronic skin ulcers.

Eight drug addicts became infected via the needle. Seven died.

+ Tetanus has become a disease of older people. This is understandable because those over 50 are the least likely to be immunized. The toxoid vaccine was used extensively in World War II and our armed forces have continued to use it. Routine toxoid immunization of infants has also been carried out since World War II. There are many ways of dying, but tetanus is one of the worst.

+ TOMORROW: Clues to Alcoholism.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

+ TALKS TO HERSELF

F. H. writes: A woman in her early seventies talks to herself when alone, even pitching her voice in different tones. Is this the beginning of a mental illness?

REPLY

Only if she is conversing with imaginary persons (hallucinations). On the other hand, many older men and women mumble, sigh, and grunt even though the mind is keen. These habits usually are done unconsciously.

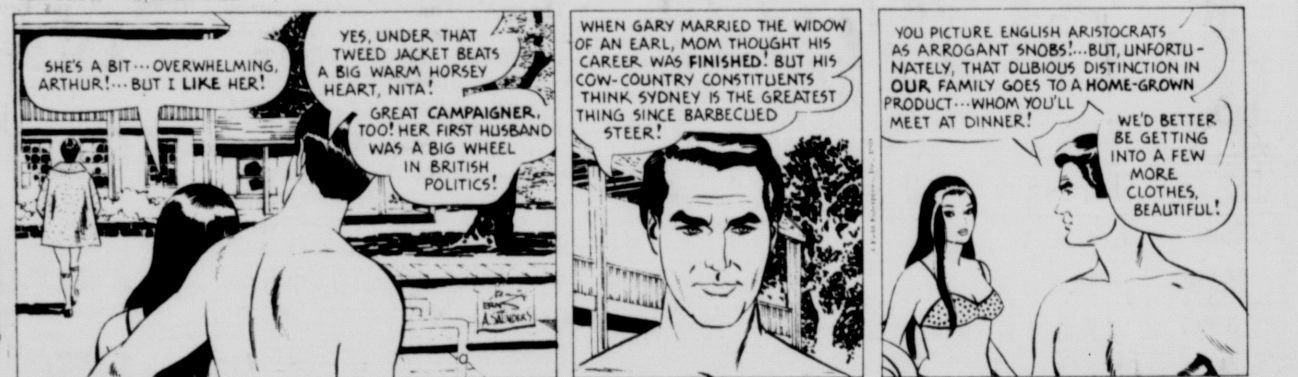

+ A BONE DISORDER

Mrs. R. E. writes: What is Osgood-Schlatter's disease that affects children's legs?

REPLY

This is a bone condition in which a small piece of the outer rim of the lower part of the knee joint is pulled away. The detached piece of the bone produces pain, especially on kneeling. Immobilizing the joint usually is effective, but if distress continues, the piece must be removed.

WAHS TRACK LETTERS

Thirty letters were awarded to members of Warren High's sparkling track team which finished with an 8-1 dual meet record, and captured second place in Section II and fourth in District 10 meets.

Sophomore letter-winners are Corky Reynolds and Rick Freeburg.

"I'd say it was successful," commented Dragon coach Tom Tourtellott about the just-past season. "A lot of people thought this year was going to be a rebuilding one—I thought so myself at the beginning—but we had some surprises, some kids who really came through, and the season was just great."

"I'm sure we could have done better, of course; if you're satisfied with what you did, I suppose you're not a very good coach," he continued. "But it was a very educational year; you can't buy the kind of information coaching gives you in a book, you just have to learn it for yourself. And I have every confidence we'll improve in future years."

An indication of how the Dragons shape up next season can be gleaned from a quick review of their 1969 effort. Javelin and 440 star Ed O'Neil with 86%, sprinter Dan Swanson with 82%, and hurdler Dick Lareau with 73% points were Warren's top three point producers this year, and they're all back.

WE'LL MISS THEM

Gone will be the next six on the point ladder in Dan Krumm, Lytle, co-captain Maxwell, Cauley, Hunter and Tundel; and the gaps they will leave will be considerable. But the memories of the season just completed should be very satisfying ones.

This edition of the Dragons set four records, Dick Lareau's 15.2 in the high hurdles, Chris Lytle's 20.2 in the lows, Ed O'Neil's 208-3 in the javelin and the 1:33.5 880 relay time of Joe Cauley, Rex Slocum, George Phillips and Dan Swanson.

"There were instances of kids coming through big for us all season," said Tourtellott. "Our best team effort was that 83-67 win over Corry, which had a great team, and when a 16-year-old kid like Ed O'Neil, who's under so much pressure because people expect him to perform equally with the 18 and 19 year olds he competes against, throws the javelin 208-3 at Sections, and then takes a second in the State meet, that has to be quite a thrill. Also there's that 880 relay team winning the Section race at Oil City that stands out as a big thrill for me."

"Our pleasant surprises include Craig Burns, who hadn't come out and then jumps six feet in the high jump, and Corky Reynolds, not big enough for weights or with enough stamina for distance who came out well in the middle events; and George Phillips, and Dave Anderson . . ."

The list goes on and on, as the happy first-year mentor recalls the thrills of the season. It is with regret that he ticks off the competitors who, through graduation, won't return.

"Larry Maxwell you have to miss; he's the type of leader who really helps a team. And Dan Krumm was so solid in the triple and long jump, Chris Lytle in the hurdles, Joe Cauley and Rex Slocum in the sprints—and hey, Jeff Hunter. All he did was go to States in the pole vault, and really come through in the pressure meets for us."

FRANKLIN AND McDOWELL

Franklin was Tourtellott's choice for best dual meet opponent, and McDowell rated the nod in all-season competition.

His voice rises just a bit as he contemplates the season ahead. Pointing to field events as the Dragon's strong point, Tourtellott notes two of three triple and long jumpers back, Dan Reynolds and Dana Pusateri; O'Neil in the javelin; Mark Dahler in the pole vault; Burns and Rick Freeburg in the High jump; and Mike Brenan in the discus. "Watch for a sophomore named John Bullock in the shot," he notes. "He's a real sleeper, too."

"Make sure you mention this, too," he says. "We had a lot of people we owe thanks to. First there was Andy Randas, who acted as meet director, ran them like cockwork, and took a load away from me. And the Beaty faculty members who helped with timing and judging." Dr. Bill DeForrest, a real booster, was a big help there, too. And Albert Conklin and Doug Poust helped our kids in the shot and discus, Dave Cobb in the running, Rick Nasman in the high jump and Larry Jordan in the pole vault."

Tourtellott indicated his plans for next year include entering more meets, including those of the indoor variety. As members of the Tri-State Coaches' Assn., Warren will be invited to most of the "name" meets in the state's western half.

It was a very good year.

REALIGNMENT NOT SETTLED YET

Football Sets Nine-Year Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's 26 club owners have decided on a nine-year rotation schedule starting in 1970, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Thursday.

At the end of the 1978 season, every team will have played every other team under the system.

The only exception in the format worked out is the Denver Broncos, who will play one more National Conference opponent each year for the first five seasons than the other 12 American Conference teams.

Here's how the schedule will work in 1970:

Each team in a four-team division will play home-and-home games with the other three teams in its division, three of the four teams in the other four-team division, two teams in the five-team group and three teams in the other conference.

A team in the five-team division will play home-and-home contests with the other four teams in the group, two teams in one of the four-team divisions, one team in the other four and three teams in the other conference.

In each case that makes a total of 14 games, the same number as the current schedule.

For the first five seasons, Denver, which is in a four-team division, will play four teams in the National Conference and only one in the American Conference's five team group instead of two.

In other business, the owners, meeting jointly, couldn't reach a decision on the player limit for 1969. If they fail to come up with an agreement, the player limit will be reduced from 40 to 36, the figure stated in the constitution.

The constitution for the merged league, however, calls for a 40-man limit so that would be the figure for the 1970 season.

Inter-league trading was discussed, but again no decision was reached. Rozelle said the possibility of an inter-league trading period from the end of the season to some point early in the spring seems to be getting some favor.

The 16 National League owners announced the forming of a foundation to help NFL alumni in need. The Professional Football Players Alumni Foundation Inc. will be funded with $100,000 from the 16 teams.

Rozelle said that if the NFL owners have time Friday they will continue their realignment discussion, but if not they will probably reconvene sometime next month.

The 13 teams that will comprise the National Conference in 1970 still must be realigned into two divisions of four teams and one of five.

Beard, Maxwell Take Early Lead In Western Golf

MIDLOTHIAN, Ill. (AP) — Steady Frank Beard and veteran Billy Maxwell carved out five-under-par 66 Thursday and tied for the first round lead in the prestigious Western Open Golf Tournament, one of this country's oldest.

Each finished with five birdies and no bogeys and had a one-stroke lead on a pair of non-winners, Rocky Thompson and Dick Ryhan, tied for third with 67s.

Tied at 68, three under par on the 6,654 yard Midlothian Country Club course, were former Masters champion Bob Goalby, South African Gary Player, Bob Murphy, Jack Ewing and Mike Hill.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, who said he has been having some troubles with his swing, had to eagle the par five 16th to salvage a par 71 and was well back in the pack.

Some of the other top names, also had their difficulties. U.S. Open champ Lee Trevino, Billy Casper and PGA champ Julius Boros all had 72. Masters champ George Archer struggled in with a 74.

Arnold Palmer is not competing.

Astros Clip St. Louis

HOUSTON (AP) — Joe Morgan triggered four Houston scoring sprints with three singles and a homer and the Astros broke a four-game losing streak Thursday night with a 11-6 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Morgan singled with one out in the first inning and, after Jim Wynn walked, Norm Miller doubled them home off loser Mike Torrez, 1-3.

After the Cardinals took a 4-2 lead, Morgan's single started a three-run rally in the fifth that put the Astros ahead to stay. Two walks loaded the bases with none out before Denis Menke hit a sacrifice fly off reliever Dennis Ribant. Another walk filled the bases again and Jesus Alou singled to put Houston ahead 5-4.

Morgan opened the sixth with his eighth homer and consecutive singles by Wynn, Miller and Menke brought in another run.

Expo Fans Loyal Despite Losses

MONTREAL (AP)—The advertisement, in large black letters, stood out in the middle of a sports page.

"Ours is the only city in the world," the Expos' ad said, "where you don't lose a fan because you lose a game."

Even now, after the Montreal Expos of the National League have lost 18 consecutive games, they seem to have trouble losing their fans.

The Expos dropped their 18th straight Wednesday night—8-3 to San Francisco Giants—but there were 9,510 fans at Jarry Park for the game, carried on the French-language television network of the CBC.

The defeat broke the record of most consecutive losses by an expansion team in its initial season of action. The New York Mets held the previous record of 17, set in 1962.

On Tuesday night, when the Expos went down 9-3 to the Giants to tie the record, there were 19,399 fans on hand.

Defeat, even under the best of circumstances, often is bitter. But in this baseball mad city they even stand to cheer a foe for contributing to the wrecking of their home club.

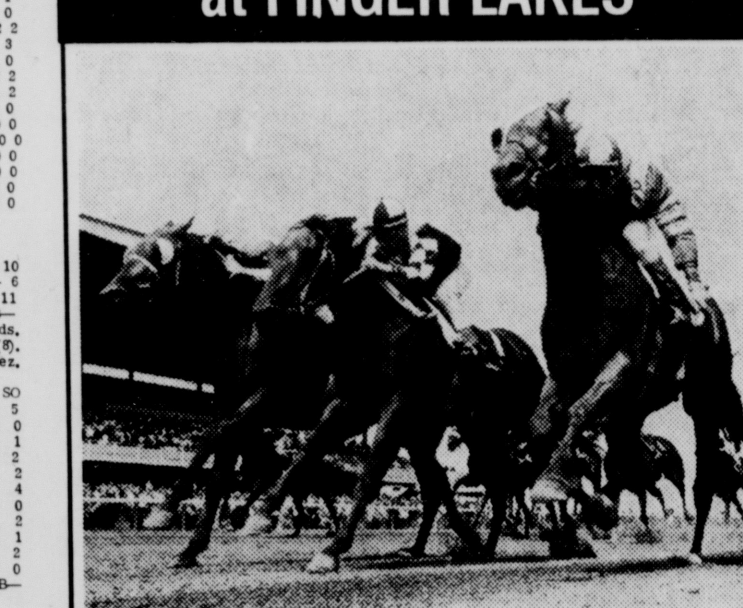

"I look about me and just shake my head in astonishment," said Jim Fanning, general manager of the Expos. "There is nothing to match the devotion of these people."

The Expos have been getting their share of hits in their games but errors and sagging pitching have helped the opposition get more hits and more runs.

Stargell's double off starter Steve Jones came with two outs and scored Richie Hebner who opened the inning with a walk. The Pirates picked up what was to be the winning run in the fourth on a walk, a single and a sacrifice fly by pitcher Bob Cluck.

Batting Cepeda Behind Aaron Puts Braves in Driver's Seat

If the Braves win their first National League pennant since moving to Atlanta, Manager Luman Harris probably will look back on a spring exhibition game in which the New York Mets played the St. Louis Cardinals in St. Petersburg.

"I was over in St. Pete while the Braves were playing the Minnesota Twins in Orlando," Harris recalled the other day. "I went over to look at Orlando Cepeda."

"You tell newspapermen the truth and they don't believe you," Dick Young and the other New York writers saw me and thought I was there to make a deal with the Mets."

"How about a deal?" Young asked. He was referring to Joe Torre who was back home on Long Island holding out.

"Just then Cepeda came over and asked me why I was in St. Pete. 'I'm here to scout you,' I told him."

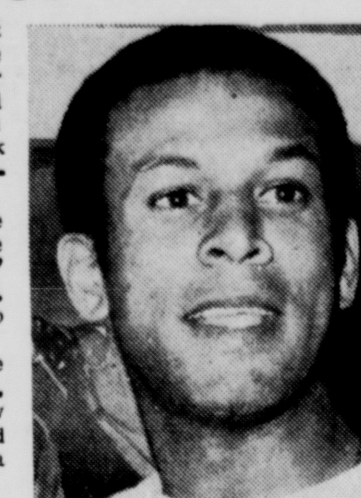

"I was serious but nobody believed me. I've known Cepeda since 1949 when he was playing in Puerto Rico when he was 22. I went there after finishing the season with Buffalo."

A few days later, with Harris assured that Cepeda still could move on a bad knee and swing a bat that helped win two National League flags for the Cardinals and one for the San Francisco Giants, Cepeda became a Brave. He was dealt for Torre who became a bit too involved in the player pension battle to suit Paul Richards, Atlanta vice president and Harris' boss.

"The Mets had Nolan Ryan in the showcase," said Harris. "They wanted to give him and others to us for Torre. With all the power we had we didn't need a hard hitting catcher, but we wanted Cepeda."

Even before Harris got Cepeda as his new first baseman on March 17 he had it all figured out.

"He'll be our holler guy in the infield and with Hank Aaron hitting third and Cepeda fourth we should be more powerful. Last year they pitched around Hank and if we get Cepeda the pitchers won't be able to do that."

ORLANDO CEPEDA
Happy in Atlanta

He hit .365 against us last year."

Cepeda also drove in 18 runs against the Braves and no other batter did that against Atlanta in 1968.

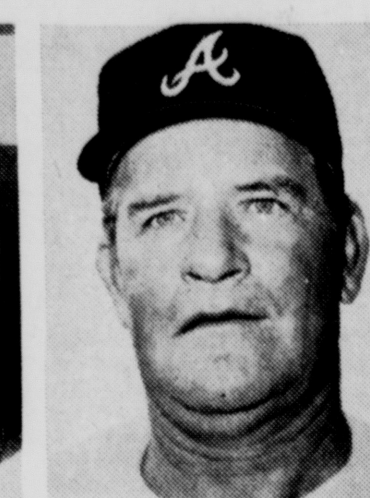

Would Harris stand for all the noise in the dressing room when Cepeda turns on his tape recorder or record player?

"Hell," says Harris, "if he hits 30 home runs for us I'll buy him one or get Don Davidson, Atlanta's hustling traveling secretary, to buy one."

When the Braves won 21 of their first 30 games Cepeda had game winning hits seven times. He was leading the team in home runs with eight and in runs batted in with 26.

Even with Cepeda replacing Torre it appeared as though the Braves would be weak in catching, at short and in left field. But Harris couldn't buy that and after 32 games they were leading their division by three games.

The 54-year-old ex-pitcher felt sure 20-year-old Bob Didier could handle the bulk of the catching and that Sonny Jackson, a bust last year, would return to form as a speedy shortstop and hit better than his .226 of a year ago. Both Didier and Jackson have been producing beyond Harris' fondest hopes.

LUMAN HARRIS
Has Braves Rolling

And in left field, where Rico Carty once played regularly, Harris now uses three men. Mike Lum gets the call late in a game for defensive reasons.

Atlanta hurlers completed only seven of their first 30 starts with knuckleballer Phil Niekro having six of them. His other starters are Pat Jarvis, Milt Pappas and Ron Reed.

Maybe Harris moves rapidly to yank a pitcher late in game but when you have a bullpen that includes Cecil Upshaw, and George Stone you can play that kind of a game.

Of Atlanta's first 21 wins, four were credited to Stone while Upshaw had eight saves and a win of his own.

The Cardinals won 13 of 18 games against the Braves last year. In one of them a Cepeda homer beat the Braves.

"He'll never beat us again," Luman Harris had said. Now he is sure of it. Cepeda has found a happy home with the Braves and when the team goes on the road he even makes out the pass list. Big O should, he has friends wherever he plays.

Tennis World Tributes Osuna

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Tennis players throughout the world paid tribute Thursday to Rafael Osuna, Mexico's greatest player, killed in an airplane crash at the height of his glory.

"This is the dream of my life," the good-natured, 30-year-old former University of Southern California player said last month after leading Mexico's Davis Cup team to an upset victory here over Australia.

Osuna was one of 79 persons who died Wednesday in the crash of a Mexicana de Aviacion airliner on a mountain range near the northern city of Monterrey. He was on a business trip for an American tobacco company.

At Paris, scene of the closing rounds in the French National Championships, flags of various nations, including that of Mexico, were flown at half-staff.

Spectators at the Roland Garros courts, where Osuna was a popular figure, stood in a moment of silence between semifinal matches won by Australian pros Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall.

"Rafael was a very popular figure here, as well as a fine player," said Pierre Darmon, former French Davis Cup star.

"It is the first time tennis has suffered a tragedy of this kind," said Philippe Chatrier, vice president of the French Lawn Tennis Federation.

Members of Australia's Davis Cup team joined in praise of Osuna as a player and a popular personality.

"It was Rafael's victory over me on the last day that gave Mexico the rubber," said Bill Bowrey.

"The scene is one I shall never forget. I ran to the net at end of the match and just had time to shake hands with him before the fans swarmed on the court and surrounded us. Rafael was lifted on their shoulders and carried around the court."

"He was amazingly quick at the net," the Australian added. "He was always doing something different."

"What a tragic loss," said Bill Talbot, former U.S. Davis Cup captain. "He was a wonderful guy with a great temperament and a magnificent touch. Tennis loses more than a good player. It loses a fine personality."

Harcourt Woods, chairman of the U.S. Davis Cup committee, said "It's a very great loss to the game. Rafael was a fine gentleman."

Osuna came out of semi-retirement to help his Mexican team beat the Australians. He had worked himself back into top shape while continuing his business interests. Born in Mexico City Sept. 15, 1938, he was a leading table tennis player before he took up lawn tennis at the age of 16. He got a tennis scholarship to Southern California.

He teamed with Antonio Palafox in 1962 to lead Mexico into the Davis Cup Challenge Round against Australia. That year he and Palafox won the men's doubles crown at Wimbledon.

THE HIGHEST JOY

NEW YORK — Amid jubilation, exultation and rejoicing, the myriad members of the Celestial Chapter of the New York Mets Fan Club held this week's meeting on Cloud Nine. After the 15-inning 1-0 victory that completed successive sweeps of the Giants and Dodgers, and the rise to second place, so much enthusiasm had been whipped up that some immortals seemed to be about to blow their minds.

"Next year has come!" cried Percy Shelley, who always tended to get carried away by emotion.

"It's great to be immortal and a Met," roared Rabelais zestfully, more gargantuan than ever.

"Today Sol Three, tomorrow the whole Milky Way Galaxy," shouted Jules Verne, who tried faithfully to keep abreast of current terminology in science fiction.

"Fellas, fellas, please, let's settle down," called out Will Shakespeare, informal leader of the gathering. "We have an important matter to deal with and we want to get started, even though we do have all the time in the universe."

The noise subsided, but the ether remained electric with excitement.

"After seven lean years as Met fans," Shakespeare began, "there are signs that seven years of plenty are beginning. We've all seen the tricky bounces and friendly gusts of wind that indicate providence is starting to smile on the legitimately splendid efforts of our improved players. It is, quite possible, in short, that the Mets will win the pennant, or come close."

"Our full enjoyment of this millennium, however, cannot be left to the inadequacies of the communications media. Radio and television reception is abominable because of interference from all that silly moon-shot gadgetry, and newspapers and magazines insist on devoting much of their space, unaccountably, to countless other demonstrations of what fools these mortals be."

"We, therefore, will send our own correspondent to travel with the Mets and report directly the daily details of their developing epic. Obviously, our reporter must have the literary talent, the breadth of human understanding, and the intellectual dimensions needed to do justice to this new chapter of Met history. Our job now is to choose that man."

The nominations began.

"You used the word epic, quite properly," Aristotle declared. "I propose we send my good friend Homer."

"With all due respect, I object," said Cicero. "Homer, being blind, will be instinctively too sympathetic to umpires. Vergil would be more objective."

"I must decline," Vergil demurred. "I am still at work on my epic about how Stan Musial vanquished a thousand pitchers: 'Of arms and The Man I sing, and...'"

The pace quickened.

"Milton could give a 'paradise—at last' but no, he's as blind as Homer."

"Cervantes? Too kitsch."

"Balzac? He'd never fit in three-abreast seating on the plane trips."

"Chaucer's great on road trips. We'd get The Shortstop's Tale, The Manager's Tale, The Yogi's Tale..."

"You know Omar Khayyam, over at Elysium East? He's got the good attitude—a hot dog, a can of beer..."

"I love Jane Austen's style—but she couldn't do dressing rooms, could she?"

But finally it was Shakespeare himself who came up with the answer.

"We have one man uniquely qualified," he pointed out, "because his acuity of observation is unsurpassed and he has been through hell as well as through purgatory and paradise: Dante Alighieri!"

The motion carried. As he donned a rumpled suit and spotted tie, to disguise himself as any ordinary baseball writer, Dante was thrilled but vaguely apprehensive. His Inferno, after all, had always been far more widely read than his Paradiso, contrary to his intentions. Would the pattern be repeated? Could any author ever make fulfillment as fascinating as the agonies of hell?

He—and the Mets—would soon see.

Senators Grab No. 1 Pick In Baseball Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Williams' Washington Senators grabbed an 18-year-old high school slugger from Long Beach, Calif., who may sign for $100,000, as the No. 1 pick in Thursday's fifth annual summer free agent draft of schoolboy and college baseball players.

The Senators picked Jeff Burroughs, a 6-foot-1, 200-pound outfielder from Woodrow Wilson High who hit five balls out of Anaheim Stadium while manager Williams watched in a recent trial.

Jack Sheehan, the Senators' chief scout, already was on the scene but Burroughs cannot be signed until his class graduates June 18. The highest bonus reportedly paid a rookie Senator was $60,000 for pitcher Joe Coleman, first-round selection in the first draft in 1965.

"I'm definitely interested in signing if the price is right," said Burroughs in Long Beach.

The 24 clubs dug deep into the pool of free agents from the June graduating classes at high school, junior college and colleges and those who had become eligible by reaching their 21st birthday. The draft was to continue through Friday. The club selecting the athlete gets exclusive negotiating rights until the next draft period.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn who opened the draft session advised the clubs they were accepting serious obligations to negotiate seriously and honestly. He warned the clubs against tampering with players drafted by other teams.

Houston, drafting second as a result of the Astros' last place finish in the National League last year, selected James Rodney Richard, a 6-7½, 225-pound right-handed pitcher from Lincoln High School in Ruston, La. Richard, 19, is a basketball whiz who may be headed for Southern University but he also was a standout in schoolboy baseball.

The Astros' scouting staff claims Richard is 7-0 this year and 21-0 in his high school career. He struck out 89 in 43 innings. In one game he hit four home runs and his club won 48-0.

The Boston Red Sox picked off a top all-around athlete in the first round when they selected Noel Jenke, a University of Minnesota linebacker and hockey ace. Jenke was taken in the 12th round in the pro football draft by the Minnesota Vikings. The 6-1, 215-pound outfielder from Owatonna, Minn., 22, also is a pro hockey prospect. The Chicago Black Hawks own negotiation rights and plan to invite him to their fall training camp as a defenseman prospect.

Although Jenke was busy with other sports during most of his college career, he hit about .380 for coach Dick Siebert's Minnesota team this spring.

Ted Nicholson, a 6-5, 200-pound third baseman from Laurel, Miss., was the No. 3 pick in the first round. He went to the Chicago White Sox who were impressed by the reports of Sam Hairston and Walt Widmayer, the scouts who signed Carlos May.

The New York Mets had their eyes on Burroughs as their first pick, but he was fortunate enough to grab their No. 2 choice for their fourth drafting position. He was Randy Sterling, a right-handed pitcher from Key West, Fla., High School. Another highly regarded early draft was Alan Bannister, a 17-year-old shortstop from Buena Vista, Calif., who has good power in his 6-foot, 175-pound frame. He went to the California Angels.

Philadelphia picked Michael Anderson, a 17-year-old first baseman-pitcher from Timonville, S.C., High. He hit 10 or 11 homers.

California dominated the first round among the states with five of the first 24 picks. South Carolina and Texas each had three and Alabama, Florida and Louisiana two each. The others came from Mississippi, Arizona, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and Kentucky.

Roy Campanella, a Hall of Famer who now scouts for San Diego, made the Padres' second round pick for their Omaha farm from his wheelchair. He selected Eli Burunda, a 6-5 right-handed pitcher from San Antonio, Texas.

FOR BELMONT

Jockey Change Boosts Dike Stock

NEW YORK (AP) — Stretch-running Dike got a new rider and a surge of fresh support Thursday as he prepared for another battle with favored Majestic Prince and Arts and Letters in Saturday's 101st Belmont Stakes.

Trainer Lucien Laurin announced that Eddie Belmonte, and not Jorge Velasquez, would be aboard Bull Hancock's towering chestnut stayer in the 1½ mile test at Belmont Park, the longest and last race in the Triple Crown series.

"Dike is in tip-top shape," the normally conservative Laurin said. "I think he'll be fresher than the other two who had to leave something of themselves on the track at Pimlico."

"He's a fine colt—I don't think he can be beaten," said Belmonte, a Puerto Rican who has won close to $2 million riding on U.S. tracks since 1961.

Dike, who finished three-quarters of a length back of Majestic Prince for third money in the 1¼ mile Derby, was held out of the 13-16 mile Preakness where Majestic Prince and Arts and Letters repeated their 1-2 act, with the Prince's winning margin cut from a neck to a head.

Early odds on Dike in the Belmont are 2-1 but they are likely to shorten before the 5:37 p.m. EDT post time Saturday. A field of six, the smallest since Gallant Man beat five rivals in 1957, is expected to answer the bugle call. CBS will televise between 5 and 6 pm EDT.

Formal entries will be made Friday, a day later than the formality at Churchill Downs and Pimlico.

Majestic Prince, the big, mahogany-colored thunderbolt out of the West ridden by Bill Hartack, is a 6-5 choice to become the first winner of the Triple Crown since Citation in 1948 and the first ever to make the sweep without a prior defeat. He has won nine straight races.

Virginia-bred Arts and Letters is 8-5. The outside challengers are Rooney's Shield, 20-1; Distray, 20-1, and Prime Fool, 30-1. Prime Fool, winner of his last three races, will have the displaced jockey, Velasquez, on his back.

Neither Laurin nor Dike's owner, A. B. "Bull" Hancock, chose to discuss the reason behind the late change in jockeys but both were said to have been critical of Velasquez' ride in the Derby.

At Louisville, Dike, winner of the Wood Memorial, appeared ready to take command at the head of the stretch and run over Majestic Prince and Arts and Letters in the dash to the wire. But he hung there momentarily and finished third despite an approximate 23 4-5 seconds last quarter.

Observers said Velasquez made his move too early with what is described as a one-run horse.

"He wouldn't have caught our horse if they'd made another trip around the track," the Prince's trainer, Johnny Longden, commented afterward. Longden can become the first man ever to score a Triple Crown victory as both a rider and trainer. He swept the boards with Count Fleet in 1943.

In 1947, the great Eddie Arcaro was taken off Phalanx, second in the Derby and third in the Preakness, and replaced by Roberto Donoso, who proceeded to coax Phalanx to victory in the Belmont.

The Prince, although reportedly tired and underweight, worked the half-mile Thursday girth for 59 seconds. Arts and Letters went five-eighths in 57.3 and clocked 1:11 for six furlongs.

Mat Clinic At Gannon

The First Annual Erie Area Wrestling and Coaching Clinic will be held in Gannon Auditorium from August 25th to August 29th.

Lou Marciari, head wrestling coach at Gannon College, will serve as director of the clinic. Joining Marciari on the instructional staff will be Ed Onorato, head wrestling coach at Behrend Campus, and Fred Powell, head wrestling coach at Slippery Rock State College.

Students through the senior year in high school will be eligible to participate in the clinic. Coaches of the tri-state area are also invited to attend.

Three different phases — beginners, intermediate and advanced — will be taught on three 38 X 38 mats. Sessions will run from 10 a.m. to noon and 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Tuition cost, which includes accident insurance and lunch, is $30. A minimum deposit of $10 is required.

Applications and further information can be obtained by contacting Lou Marciari, Gannon College, Erie, Pa. 16501.

Wills Changes Mind, Will Rejoin Montreal

VANCOUVER (AP) — Montreal's Maury Wills, who asked for voluntary retirement Tuesday, will rejoin the Expos in Los Angeles, General Manager Jim Fanning said Thursday.

"He called me this afternoon and asked to rejoin the team," said Fanning, here with the Expos for an exhibition baseball game Thursday with Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League.

Fanning said Tuesday night in Montreal he had received a typewritten note from Wills asking to be placed on the voluntary retirement list.

"We'll notify the league not to process his letter," he said Thursday. He said he didn't know if Wills would start in Friday night's game with the Dodgers.

Wills, 36, drafted from Pittsburgh, set a modern major league record in 1962 with the Los Angeles Dodgers when he stole 104 bases. He had stolen 12 in 17 attempts this year and had a .198 batting average in 43 games.

NBA Owners Agree To 1970 Expansion

DETROIT (AP) — The National Basketball Association voted Thursday to add two cities to its 14-team lineup for the 1970-71 season.

While owners declined comment, there were rumors the NBA plans split into four divisions, as have the major professional football and baseball leagues.

At least one NBA source speculated the league eventually may be expanded to 20 teams. He and others declined speculation, however, regarding cities which might be added in 1970-71 or later.

J. Walter Kennedy, NBA commissioner, previously had declared the NBA had no immediate intentions to merge with the rival American Basketball Association, following the course of the National and American Football leagues.

After admitting Milwaukee and Phoenix for the 1968-69 season, the NBA declared an expansion moratorium for the 1969-70 season.

The NBA mushroomed from nine to 14 clubs over a five year span, having taken in Seattle and San Diego in 1967-68 and Chicago in 1966-67, before adding Milwaukee and Phoenix.

NBA owners decided earlier to award penalty shots after five team fouls in any period, instead of six.

Henceforth after five fouls by a team in any period its opponent will get an extra free-throw on either a one-shot or two-shot foul. The rule has been six.

Except for offensive and double fouls personal fouls count as team fouls.

RUSSELL KIDS VISIT PITTSBURGH

Sixty-four 5th graders from Russell Elementary School left Thursday at 6:30 a.m. for a trip to Pittsburgh. They were accompanied by Mrs. Blanche McJunkin and Mrs. Martha Hummel, 5th grade teachers, and by 35 parents. The youngsters will tour Carnegie Museum before lunch in the museum cafeteria. Their second stop will be at the city boat landing, where they will board the Gateway Clipper for rides on the Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers. The group will also visit the Gulf building and will have a chance to ride the Mt. Washington incline. From there, they will be able to view the city.

Final stop during the trip will be for supper and souvenirs at the Greater Pittsburgh Airport before the three busloads leave for home. The buses will stop once at Harrisville on the way down and again on the way back. They are expected back in Russell during the early hours of Friday morning. This is the 19th annual Pittsburgh trip for the 5th graders. Mrs. McJunkin organized the tour in 1950 and has made every trip but one with the class since then. To earn money for the trip, the youngsters held candy and seed sales, and sponsored several skating parties.

One Thing You Can't Get With Credit Card: Medical Care; Doctors Prefer Deadbeats

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK (AP) — If you're one of the millions of people who use credit cards today, you know how useful they can be. They can be used to pay for just about everything.

One of the few remaining holdouts, however, is the medical profession. You still find thousands of doctors who would rather complain about the deadbeats who won't pay than bring themselves to accepting a credit card.

The Medical Society of the State of New York, for example, took a position against medical credit cards 10 years ago and continues to oppose their acceptance by physicians.

In a survey it conducted on the subject two years ago, it found that 28 county medical societies in New York, frowned on the use of credit cards by doctors and only one responded favorably (Erie County). Nationwide, it found that eight states societies opposed the cards but that eight more would leave it up to the doctor and 27 more had no official stand.

A spot survey just conducted by the New York Times shows that despite pockets of opposition in a few key areas, including Texas, Florida, Alabama, New Jersey, Arkansas, the District of Columbia and to a lesser extent in California, doctors, dentists, hospitals and other professionals are discovering the curative powers of the credit card.

A gynecologist in Denver accepts the BankAmericard. A pediatrician in Chicago takes the Master Charge Card and another in Wheeling accepts the Roberts Card.

Before the end of the summer, dentists in New York will be accepting a new arrival on the scene, the Medi Card.

A psychiatrist in Hartford, who charges $30 a session, said: "I think most doctors would love to have that." His wife chimed in, "I know every wife would."

An eye and ear specialist in Kankakee, Ill., feels differently. He tried credit cards a few years ago but abandoned them when nobody sought to pay this way.

Nevertheless, according to the Valley National Bank of Arizona, there is a "growing acceptance" of credit cards in the professions across the country.

Doctors have always had a problem collecting bills and many employ collection agencies — at a high cost — to pursue bad debts. Others just wait. If they accepted credit cards they'd get their money immediately — minus a small charge — and let the credit card company worry about collecting.

The patient has something to gain, too. Often he may not be able to get attention unless he can guarantee at least part payment in advance. Credit cards do this. For those who pay within 25 days, credit cards cost the patient nothing. For those who need time to pay off, the credit cards provide this convenience, although the interest cost may range between 12 and 18 per cent a year.

If you're looking for a doctor, dentist or hospital that accepts credit cards, you may have to shop around.

Since professionals aren't permitted to advertise, one may have to check with a local bank, hospital or doctor. Some may have small plaques—similar to the decals on drugstore windows — saying which credit cards they accept. Some doctors and dentists may also have application forms for their patients. Remember, too, that if you don't pay, the credit card companies may be a lot more difficult to put off than your family doctor.

Here are a few possibilities in your search for medical credit:

—Carte Blanche now has a deal with 1,200 hospitals around the country guaranteeing payment on the first $200 of your hospital bill. Thousands of banks have Master Charge or one of their own cards that many hospitals now accept in full payment.

—Blue Shield subscribers in Wisconsin, starting June 1, can charge up to $500 on credit with doctors, dentists, hospitals, clinics and for ambulance service, crutches, wheelchairs and the like.

—Medi Card, Inc., whose financing agent is a subsidiary of Diners Club, Inc., said its card would be introduced first in Boston and would be offered

Larger Fines for Traffic Violations Suggested To Foster Greater Safety on Pennsylvania Highways

HARRISBURG (AP) — A southeast Pennsylvania legislator proposed Thursday that fines be increased for traffic violations as a means of fostering greater safety on the highways.

Rep. John S. Renninger, R-Bucks, said his bill was prompted by the record number of traffic deaths which occurred across the nation over the Memorial Day weekend.

"Traffic safety experts all have said that safe defensive driving habits can reduce the slaughter on our roads and the purpose of my legislation is to force drivers to practice safe driving habits," Renninger said.

The bill would increase the fine for speeding from a flat $10 to $10 for each mile over the speed limit. Reckless driving would be punishable by fines ranging from $25 to $50 rather than the current $10 to $25.

For running a stop sign or stop light, the present $5 fine would be raised to $50, Renninger said.

"If we acknowledge that traffic fatalities are a major problem of our society, then we must also acknowledge that nominal fines and penalties are no longer sufficient deterrents," Renninger said.

Gilbert Gates, Senior, Is a Man Who Knows a Good Investment When He Sees One

Mr. Gates thought this 1929 Model A Ford, 1½ ton truck was a good investment when he bought it and he still thinks so. "This truck doesn't owe me a penny," says Mr. Gates.

In his dray business Mr. Gates used this truck for 40 years. In doing so he wore out one speedometer. The truck now has traveled 180,000 miles and is still raring to go. It is rust free and in excellent working order.

Another good investment Mr. Gates recently made was to put some of his earnings into Pennsylvania Banks 5% Investors Passbook Savings Plan. WHY? Because Mr. Gates enjoys seeing his savings earn that big 5% interest.

Take it from a fellow who knows a good investment when he sees one. Let our 5% Investors Passbook Savings Plan go to work for you today.

you are needed

Everyone wants to be useful and needed. And everyone can be when it is seen that the purpose of man's existence is to express God, divine Love. A Christian Science lecturer says "because divine Love is universal we can always experience it and express it wherever we are."

You and your friends are invited to hear "You Are Needed" by Howard H. Irwin, C.S., a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship and a practitioner in the healing ministry of Christian Science for many years. Admission is free, everyone is welcome.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of Johnnie Burns who passed away 15 years ago June 6, 1954.

To us his name will ever be
The key that unlocks memory
Of a Dear One gone but cherished yet
A beloved face we'll never forget
Sadly missed by Mother & Dad.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of FRANK GREGORY who was killed in service June 6, 1968.

One sad and lonely year has passed
Since that great sorrow fell
The shock we received that day
We still remember well
And though you died far away,
Your spirit seems quite near today.
Sadly missed by Brother Jack, Eleanor and A, B, C & D.

IN MEMORIAM
DANNY WAGNER Who passed away 5 years ago.

We do believe that God above,
Created you for us to love.
He picked you out from all the rest,
Because he knew we loved you best.
We once had a heart so brave
And true,
But now it's gone from us to you.
Take care of it as we have done,
For you have two, and we have none.
SADLY MISSED BY: Mother & Dad, brothers and sisters.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of my grandson, DANNY WAGNER. It is 5 years today, June 6, 1964.
Sweet little flower of heavenly birth,
He was so fair to bloom on earth.
The angels came with loving hands
And bade his bloom in a better land.
Sadly missed by grandmother Mrs. Leo Eberhart

Can your new home be exactly what you want?

How can you afford it now?

Ridge has the answer.

You've got your building lot picked out and you want to start building your new home now. But with building costs so high, is it possible to get everything you want in a home right now?

This much is certain: If you put it off until next year, your new home and everything in it will cost more. A lot more. Newspapers and magazines everywhere predict sharp rises in building costs again. So the best time is now... and with Ridge, you can choose everything the way you want it.

How do you want it to look on the outside?... Where do you want the closets?... Don't you have a special kitchen you've always dreamed about? You can have these and a thousand other choices with the Ridge home you choose... appliances... colors... fixtures.

Everything. So you can build your dream home... now.

Concerned about the mortgage and how you'll fit the payments into your budget? That's the best news of all — with Ridge, you can do some of the "finishing jobs" yourself — painting, insulating — whatever you choose.

That way, each job you do subtracts from the cost of your new home and adds to its value. You can easily save hundreds — even thousands of dollars. And you know how important that can be in keeping your mortgage payments low.

Of course your Ridge dealer will do the whole job if you want him to.

See your Ridge dealer right now... He'll show you how you can choose the home you want... and afford the home you choose.

THE ALLENWOOD... This 3-bedroom rancher is one of the most popular of all 38 Ridge Home designs! The living room is over 20 ft. long! 1270 sq. ft. of living space can be planned to your particular needs. $8,825 includes two complete bathrooms, rough plumbing, kitchen including refrigerator and range, complete heating and electrical systems (less wire), gutters and downspouts, (garage extra)... all ready for installation. F.O.B. Conshohocken, Pa. The foundation, basement floor and erection of a weather-proofed exterior by your local Ridge dealer, optional at additional cost.

TIDIOUTE

Reporter: Lois McCloskey
484-3846Huff Remembered
On Memorial Day

By LOIS MCCLOSKEY

While our fine Memorial Day parade held its memorials in the Tidioute Cemetery to honor our service men of many wars, we took the time to visit the grave of our oldest war dead, one Benjamin Huff who is buried in our Old Cemetery.

We gathered a bouquet of flowers and placed them on this 141 year-old Revolutionary War grave and took a picture of this hallowed ground as the newly placed stars and stripes waved gently in the breeze. These were the only flowers placed in this cemetery although there are over 100 graves of our early settlers.

Near Huff's grave is that of his wife Mary who died on Jan. 10, 1830 at the age of 81. Also supposed to be buried in this cemetery is Arthur Magill, another Revolutionary soldier who died in 1847 at the age of 83. There was a second Revolutionary War marker and flag near Huff but there was no headstone. Magill was born at Burnt Cabins, Pa., and his war record is available. We mentioned it when we did one of our Tidioute history stories on the Magill family shortly after the death of Lyman Beecher Magill last fall. He was the last of the Magill family in this area.

The Tidioute Lions Club is certainly to be commended for the excellent progress it has made in renovating this cemetery. It is now in the midst of leveling the ground with small bulldozers and straightening the headstones. One can now walk through the whole grounds and view all of the markers of our pioneers.

Already it is being visited by interested persons and we saw five there on Memorial Day while we were there.

We tried in vain to have the Firing Squad and bugler visit this most memorial spot in town on Memorial Day to honor our two Revolutionary War soldiers there, but still have hopes that it can be accomplished when the cemetery is completely finished. Certainly it should be a commendable and commemorative day for the whole community and one long in need of being held.

HONOR STUDENTS

Boyd Allen Bush, top honor student is to be valedictorian, and Judith Lee Yucha, the salutatorian at the 90th annual Commencement service to be held Wednesday, June 11 at 8 p.m. Shelly Jean Sheldon, 3rd honor student, who will introduce the Commencement speaker Dr. Robert Kapp, is not pictured as she has already entered nurses training at the Phillipsburg State General Hospital.

Tidioute to Hold
Commencement

Although a Tidioute high school has been in existence since 1877 when it started in the old Union school building, this year's graduation activities will be only the 90th since there were two early years in which there were no graduates.

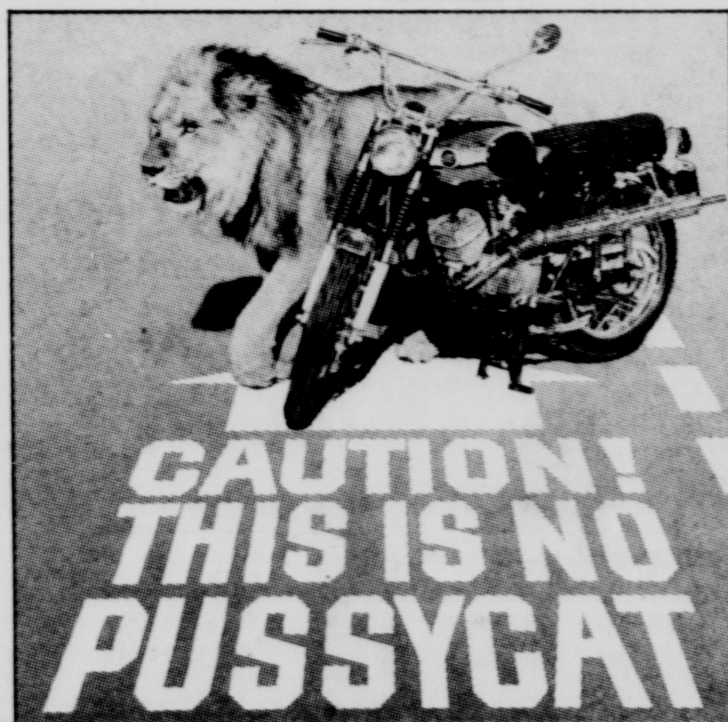

The 1969 class is most unusual in as much as it has 15 young men and just 11 girls graduating; also it seems to be a number of years since we had a male valedictorian, Boyd Allen Bush this year, who achieved top honors. Second honors as salutatorian goes to Judith Lee Yucha and third honors to Shelly Jean Sheldon who has already started nurses training at Phillipsburg State General Hospital but will return for graduation festivities. She will have the honor of introducing the commencement speaker who is Dr. Robert W. Kapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank and a 1937 graduate of Tidioute High. He is a practicing physician in Cleveland, Ohio.

Baccalaureate Service will be held on Sunday, June 8 at 4 p.m. in the school auditorium with the Rev. Arthur Fleckenstein giving the invocation, leading the audience in the Lord's Prayer and later pronouncing the Benediction.

The Rev. George Campbell, pastor of the United Methodist Church, will give the baccalaureate address. James O. Bodamer, music director, will lead the concert band in the prelude, "Lo How A Rose 'Ere Blooming"; the procession, "Pomp and Circumstance"; the congregational singing of "God Of Our Fathers"; and the Postlude, "The Swan," by the concert band.

These are the 29 seniors who will flip the tassels on their mortar boards as diplomas are presented and leave as high school alumni: Larry Edward Anderson, Susan Bailor, Betty Ann Benner, Boyd Allen Bush, Ronald Keith Carr, Clinton Vaughn Couse, Garry Joseph Davis and Vallorie Kay Emick. Also Patrick William Heenan, Jerry D. Heltzel, Alvin Lee Howe, James Warren Huntington, Thomas Allen Jamison, Freeda D. Johnson, Thomas Lee Johnson, Kathie Glenn Knott, Glennamie Lindell, Dennis Michael Martin, Judith Lee Yucha, Sally Jo Ziegler and John Michael Sveta.

Also Willard Scott McKay, Christine Elizabeth Nuttall, Vincent N. Pillar, Sharon L. Rasimovic, Thomas J. Sabella, William Harry Sheckler Jr., Shelly Jean Sheldon, John Shields.

MONEY FOR MALLAIG

MALLAIG, Scotland (AP) — The picturesque harbor at Mallaig, one of the busiest herring fishing ports in Britain and a principal gateway to the Hebridean Islands off Western Scotland, is to be improved at a cost of 400,000 pounds ($960,000).

35th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Open House Honors
The Edward Alberths

An Open House was held by the children of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alberth of 233 Main St., in honor of their 35th wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 1 from 2 to 5 p.m. in the social rooms of the United Presbyterian Church.

The Alberth children and their families attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Roger (Mary) Grettenberger, Mark, Jill, Julie and Matthew Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Howard (Virginia) Edmiston; David and Karen of Franklin; Mr. and Mrs. James Alberth of Buffalo, N.Y.; Laura and Edward Jr. of Tidioute. One son William, his wife Donna, and children William Jr., Gregory and Daniel of Cleveland, Ohio, were unable to attend.

The serving table was beautifully decorated in a pink and white theme with an arrangement of pink carnations, white spirea and fern. A four tier, square wedding cake was served by Mrs. James King. Small tables had nosegay arrangements of Star of Jerusalem and pink carnations.

Laura Alberth and Jill Grettenberger presided at the punch bowl and the guest book was in

Slippery Rock
In EEO Program

Slippery Rock State College will accept nearly 25 culturally disadvantaged students this fall under the college's new Equal Educational Opportunity Program.

According to Dr. John F. Marshall Jr., dean of men and chairman of the committee which initiated the program, Slippery Rock is one of the first state colleges to open such a program.

The EEO program is designed to help students enter college even though they do not qualify for regular admission because of poor academic preparation, due to environmental and economic disadvantages, if those students are deeply motivated toward a college degree.

To be considered for the EEO program, a student must have a secondary school diploma or a Commonwealth Diploma, issued by the Department of Public Instruction in Harrisburg. There are no restrictions on race, sex or state residence for students applying for admission.

Questions concerning application under the program should be directed to Dr. James Unterwagner, Director, EEO Program; World Culture Building; Slippery Rock State College.

CHAT WITH BETTER HALF LONDON (AP) — A recipe for avoiding marital strife was given by Judge Sir Neville Faulks in London's divorce court. Husbands, he said, should spend more time chatting with their wives — "women have to be talked to and made much of when men come home in the evening."

Two 4-H Clubs
Are Organized

The first meeting of the second year 4-H Club group organized on Saturday, May 17 at 10 a.m. and named the group Modern Pioneering. The following officers were elected: Vicki Fike, president; Barbara Snavley, vice president; secretary, Cathy Froman and news reporter Sallie Mellon. Not enough members were present to elect a song leader and game leader.

The club will hold its second meeting on Thursday, June 12 at 10 a.m. at the pond up McGuire Run.

Respectfully submitted by Sallie Mellon, news reporter.

The organization of the 4-H Outdoor Cooking Club was held on May 19 with the following officers elected: Heidi McGraw, president; Terry Cotterman, vice president; Frank Cotterman, secretary; Linda Cotterman, game leader; Julie Fike, song leader; Cathy Coughlin, news reporter.

The club held its first cook-out on May 26 making toasted sandwiches over an open fire in the back yard of Rev. Zorn's manse. The next cookout will be held Monday, June 9 at 4 p.m. in the same location.

Respectfully submitted by Cathy Coughlin, news reporter.

Announce Dedication
Of State Police Building

Dedication ceremonies for the new Pennsylvania State Police Troop E Headquarters Building will be held Wednesday, June 11th in Lawrence Park Township, Erie County.

The ceremony, scheduled for 11:00 a.m., will be preceded by an inspection tour by federal, state and local officials.

The Honorable Samuel Y. Roberts, State Superior Court Judge will be the principal speaker. Colonel Frank McKetta, Commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Police, who at one time was stationed at the Erie Headquarters, will also take part in the dedication.

Lt. Salvador Rodriguez, Acting Commander of Troop E will act as Master of Ceremonies. Music will be provided by the Ingotz Area High School Band.

PHD Continues
Safety Efforts

The State Highway Department, in its continuing safety efforts, has revised basic principles and standards providing safe traffic movement in areas of highway construction.

"These principles and standards," said Highway Secretary Robert G. Bartlett, "are aimed at the protection of the public and workmen while maintaining the public's good will by minimizing their inconvenience."

The 106-page bulletin, distributed to each of the Commonwealth's municipalities, sets forth basic principles and prescribes standards in the application, installation, and maintenance of all types of traffic control where traffic is maintained through an area of construction. They are the first major changes since 1961.

Also, a number of typical situations are illustrated, showing the proper application of the standard protective and warning devices.

Armstrong Is
Guest Pastor

The Rev. Mead Armstrong, who was a Tidioute High School teacher from 1931 to 1942, and is now an ordained Baptist minister, will be the guest pastor at the Tidioute Baptist Church on Sunday, June 8 at 11 a.m.

After leaving Tidioute, Rev. Armstrong taught at the Baptist Bible Seminary in New York and is presently teaching at Cedarville College in Cedarville, Ohio.

Death Sentence in Holdup Slaying for Teenagers

HARRISBURG (AP) — Three Pittsburgh teenagers, one a girl, were convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to death Thursday for a bank hold-up slaying here last December.

A three-judge Dauphin County Criminal Court tribunal, employing a new law, first determined the degree of murder and then passed sentence in a courtroom heavily guarded by sheriff's deputies.

The three 18-year-old Negroes showed no emotion as, one-by-one, they were sentenced to death by Judge Carl B. Shelley. They had pleaded guilty to a general charge of murder last Monday but contended they had been on a narcotics binge and couldn't be held accountable for their actions.

The prosecution had not specifically requested the death penalty.

Sentenced to death were Sharon Wiggins, Foster Lee Tarver and Samuel Barlow. Court sources said Miss Wiggins, an admitted trigger girl in the Dec. 2 holdup, is the first female to be sentenced to death.

Grade School Has Violent Race Battle

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Black and white pupils hurled dinnerware at each other in the cafeteria of Oliver High School Thursday, then surged outside and battled each other with fists.

And at McNaugher Elementary School, black children in the seventh and eighth grades staged a violent demonstration in the library, throwing books on the floor and overturning tables and chairs.

"They messed the place up pretty good," a school spokesman said. He said authorities were puzzled over what caused the outburst.

Both Oliver and McNaugher are on Pittsburgh's North Side, which contains a large number of the city's Negro population.

Nine pupils were injured in the Oliver fracas and John Walsh, a city detective acting as a school security guard, was knocked to the ground and hit on the head and arm. He suffered a cut arm and lost his container of mace in the melee.

Woodrow Zimmerman, a milkman making rounds in the area, was attacked by a gang of pupils and beaten. The spokesman said he was hospitalized in poor condition.

The spokesman said the melee, fourth at Oliver in two years, was a result of "racial tensions breaking out."

"When whites and blacks line up on either side of the cafeteria and start throwing things at each other, that's racial," he said. "These are racial incidents. There's no use denying that."

Patriarch of Pennsylvania IOOF Will Attend Kossuth Encampment

Herbert C. Mix, grand patriarch of the Grand Encampment of Pennsylvania, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will visit Kossuth Encampment No. 98, IOOF, Saturday.

The annual Northern and Central Pennsylvania Degree Rally will be held at IOOF Hall, 208 Hickory st. At 1:30 p.m. two encampment degrees will be conferred on a class of candidates. Following the ceremonies dinner will be served by the Lady Warren Rebekah Lodge.

Patriarch Mix will be accompanied by a full slate of grand encampment officers including: Edwin L. Buehler, grand high priest; Maynard J. Ernst, grand senior warden; Paul Wetzel, grand junior warden; Albert S. Montgomery, PGP PGR, grand scribe; Evan W. Reese, PGP grand treasurer; Earl R. Leiby, PGP, grand representative; William J. Yeager, grand marshal; Rex P. Bennett, grand inside sentinel; and Hugh Barrett, district deputy grand patriarch.

The Grand Encampment Degree will be conferred during a special session of Grand Encampment following dinner. The Royal Purple Degree will conclude the meeting.

Kenneth Anderson, chief patriarch of Kossuth Encampment No. 98, has asked all members to attend the special session. Dinner at 5:30 p.m. will be $1.50 per person. There will be free parking.

Miss Wiggins and Tarver testified they could recall very little of what took place that day.

The trio was convicted under a law adopted Jan. 24, 1968 and which became effective last Aug. 1.

Under it, when a defendant enters a plea of guilty to a general charge of murder, the presiding judge shall hold a hearing to determine whether the case may constitute first degree murder.

If the preliminary evidence indicates to the judge that a first degree charge is a possibility, he calls in two other judges to help him hear the evidence and decide all issues of law and fact.

In cases where a panel of three sits, the decision as to degree may be by a majority of the judges. If they determine the murder is less than the first degree, the judge before whom the plea is entered, will pass sentence.

If the crime is determined to be murder in the first degree, sentence shall be life imprisonment unless the judges agree unanimously on a death sentence.

Although Dauphin County Dist. Atty. LeRoy Zimmerman had not requested the death penalty, the severity was not unique.

In one landmark case, that of Cleveland Thompson, in his second trial in Allegheny County in 1959, the death penalty was not asked, but a jury decreed it. Thompson subsequently was executed.

7-Year Antitrust Breweries Suit Near Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government moved today to settle a seven-year-old antitrust suit that challenged a marketing agreement between Anheuser-Busch Inc. and F. & M. Schaeffer Brewing Co., two of the nation's largest beer producers.

The agreement itself was terminated by the two companies in 1964.

The action came in a proposed consent decree filed by the Justice Department and Schaeffer in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said the decree, scheduled to become final in 30 days permanently prohibits Schaeffer from entering a marketing agreement with Anheuser-Busch anywhere in the United States.

In addition, Schaeffer would be barred for 10 years from making any such agreement with any other brewer in areas where it now does business unless permission is first granted by a federal court or the Justice Department.

The decree would end a civil antitrust case brought by the government against Schaeffer and Anheuser-Busch in December 1962.

In its original suit, the government challenged agreements between the two firms under which Schaeffer marketed Anheuser-Busch beer in the greater New York area.

These agreements, the Justice Department alleged, violated restraint of trade provisions of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Although the two firms terminated their agreement in 1964, the Justice Department continued the legal proceedings in an effort to prohibit future marketing arrangements.

Send Wills Your Ticks For Health

HARRISBURG (AP) — Some people collect coins; others, stamps, seashells or old campaign buttons.

William Wills of the state health department is collecting ticks — live ones.

Ticks, Wills explains for the benefit of city folks, are small, blood-sucking insects which sometimes carry bacteria which cause Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

He wants them, alive, for a Health Department research project to test the effectiveness of various insecticides. He asks those who find them to mail them to him in a medicine bottle or other small container.

Since ticks may carry the germs of the serious fever, Wills cautions outdoorsmen to handle the bugs only with tweezers or a piece of plastic bag to avoid bites.

Specimens, he says, should be mailed to the State Health Department Entomology Laboratory, Box 90, Harrisburg, 17120.

Fishing and fish-meal production is Peru's biggest single industry.

Waitress Tells Of Threats At Murder Trial

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) — A former waitress, visibly shaken, screamed from the stand Thursday that she changed her story several times because she was threatened by a private detective hired by the defense in the murder trial of Alphonse W. Kyles.

Connie Leathers' outburst came under the cross examination of defense attorney Harold Randolph of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Leathers, weeping and crying while Randolph questioned her, said the threats were made by Michael C. Phillips, a private detective from Philadelphia.

She testified that Phillips "followed me around" in State College, where she worked as a waitress in a diner, and King of Prussia, where she later moved.

Phillips, said Mrs. Leathers, told her that Kyles, accused of murdering a Penn State student, had a lot of money and many friends who did not want him to get hurt.

"I'm glad you're not going to testify against him," she quoted Phillips as saying to her.

She had testified that she saw Kyles and Frederick Robbins Jr. in the diner where she worked the night Charles Miller, 22, of Falls Church, Va., was murdered.

Asked why she told Phillips one story and police another, Mrs. Leathers cried out: "To get him (Phillips) off my back! I was afraid for my family!"

Kyles, 39, is accused of shooting Miller, a mineral industries student, Sept. 23, 1967. The prosecution said Kyles, of Washington, D.C. shot Miller because Miller's estranged wife told Kyles she was returning to Miller. Kyles was in love with her, the state contends.

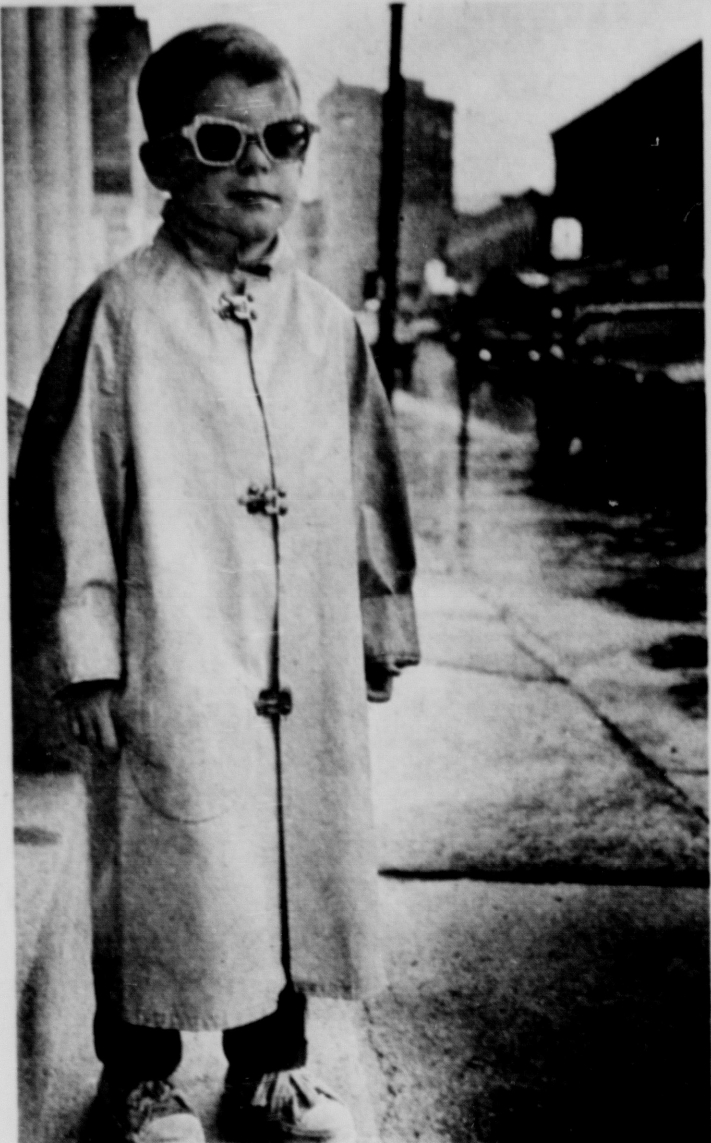

Also testifying was Robbins' father, Frederick, who said Kyles and his son came to his home on Labor Day, 1967, for a visit.

When they left, Frederick Robbins Jr. gave Kyles a .22-caliber pistol that belonged to Robbins Jr. Robbins said his son told him Kyles needed the gun for protection. Kyles was carrying the pistol when they left, he said.

Woman Bitten by Crab Spider, Not Recluse

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Specialists said Thursday an Ohio woman brought to St. John's Hospital was not bitten by a brown recluse spider.

Anthony Calabro, assistant director of the hospital's poison control center, said Mrs. Ruth Harris of Toronto was bitten by a species of the common crab spider, classified by entomologists as "xysticus elegans."

The spider was captured alive by Mrs. Harris after it bit her and was brought to the hospital for study.

Calabro said the identification of the spider was made by Dr. George Wallace, head of the department of entomology at the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh. Entomology is the study of insects.

Mrs. Harris, 39, who was bitten by the spider last Saturday while scrubbing her kitchen floor in her bare feet, was initially taken to a Steubenville, Ohio, hospital and then transferred to St. John's where she had been listed in guarded condition.

The hospital reported her condition Thursday as "very satisfactory."

"We never confirmed it was a brown recluse," said Calabro. "We said the symptoms agreed with those from a brown recluse bite."

Doctors say the bite of the brown recluse spider is generally fatal to those with poor health or to the young. Todd Quester, 5, of Amherst, Ohio, died about a month ago after being bitten by a brown recluse. But doctors said the illness that caused his death could not be explained by the spider bite alone.

Calabro said Dr. Wallace said the crab spider is not at all related to the brown recluse spider.

Philadelphia Fights For Bicentennial Dollars

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Should Philadelphia become the focal point of the nation's 200th birthday in 1976—and the battle for the lucrative honor is now heating up—planners estimate the celebration would attract more than 51 million visitors to the birthplace of American independence.

This is nearly double the 27 million admissions to the 1964 New York World's Fair.

The Philadelphia Bicentennial Corp., competing primarily against Washington and Boston, with Baltimore reportedly planning a bid, said its exposition would have a gigantic economic impact on the area.

Visitors would spend $1.1 billion, and that big pile of dollars would provide around 75,000 jobs at three exposition sites. And in the four years before 1976 some $400 million in new construction would give another 20,000 work.

The report by Economics Research Associates of Los Angeles said the fair would generate considerable tax revenues—$65 million to Philadelphia and $93 million to Pennsylvania. The new buildings would increase annual real estate tax income by over $9.2 million.

Bluntly, planners said development of the sites—in and around historic Independence National Park, and over railroad tracks in North and West Philadelphia—possibly would have to wait until the 21st Century if Philadelphia isn't selected. The final decision is up to President Nixon.

Henderson Supplee Jr., board chairman of the corporation which has spent more than $500,000 so far in bicentennial studies, told newsmen "we need federal designation and some federal funds—far, far less than Washington or Boston—if we are to attract a half billion dollars from private sources and public financing."

Boston's plan envisages an immediate federal grant of $250 million to clear and redevelop a lakefront area. Washington's plan is now in preparation but also anticipates a heavy infusion of federal cash.

"Our projects are highly flexible," said Ewen C. Dingwall, executive consultant.
